VOL. XXIII BELLEFONTE, PA., THURSDAY MORNING. JULY 9, 1891. NO. 28.

Established in 1869.}

"Let us see to it that a Government, of the People, for the People, and by the People, shall not perish from the Earth."---A. LINCOLN.

Terms: $1 50 per Year

IT will take something more than a marriage to rehabilitate Mr. Parnell in the esteem of the American people.

CHICAGO folks seem more intent upon using the World's Fair to boom their real estate than upon making the fair a success.

SENATOR Peffer has had his whiskers trimmed, now if he will have the ragged edges trimmed from some of his ideas he may turn out much better than many people expected.

"ITALY has gone to the Alliance," was startling news recently cabled from Europe but it isn't the Farmers Alliance that the "Dagoes" have gone into; it is the European Commercial Alliance that proposes to undertake the senseless contract of trying to Bulldoze Uncle Sam.

A cable from the United States to Brazil is now proposed. It should be put down as early as possible, as it would unquestionably prove a powerful auxiliary in the work of obtaining the trade of that country, which has been so auspiciously begun under reciprocity clause of the McKinley tariff law.

JUST as Senator Sherman when Secretary of the Treasury brought about the resumption of specie payments when the democratic press was shouting in chorus "it is impossible," so that other distinguished son of Ohio, now at the head ot the Treasury department, will prove that the democrotic cry of "bankruptcy" is false, in fact he has already proven it.

AT this distance it does not look like good business for the World's Fair officials to have given one railroad the monopoly of carrying passengers to the exposition grounds. It not only makes them liable to the charge of favoritism, but it makes it almost a certainty that visitors will not be as well provided for as they would have been had there been open competition between several roads for their patronage.

THE democratic attempt to hitch the Knight's of Labor to the tail of their kite will fail as it deserves to do. There are, of course, some scatter brained individuals in that as well as in all other organizations, but the leaders of the Knight's of Labor know that for that organization to become identified with any political party would be to sign the death warrant of its power and usefulness as an arbitrator of industrial questions, and they will not allow it.

THE biggest thing in the great agricultural sections of the country this year is the crops, and, thanks to the McKinley tariff law the farmer will get good prices for all his products. Perhaps the intelligent farmer will not think of this when the time come to, cast his vote, the democrats sole reliance is his forgetfulness, but then again perhaps he will. It is hardly reasonable to expect a man to vote against the political party to which he is indebted for his prosperity, as the democrats are doing.

FROM every direction comes the good news that the republicans are presenting a solid and unbroken front to the enemy: rhere are no gaps in the line, the voters are touching elbows and marching on toward victory, with the determination to sweep away all obstacles. The elections of the present year will be preliminary skirmishes to the great battle of next year which will decide whether this Government shall continue to be administered in the interest of America and Americans or for the benefit of Europe. There will of course be a number of side issues, but the great question for each voter to decide will be: Are you for America or Europe?

VERILY flapdoodleism is on the the top at the English end of the American newspaper supply of cable news. We are asked to believe that Sir William Gordon Cumming is, after having been dismissed in disgrace from the army for having cheated at cards, more popular than ever in social circles and that his early election to Parliament is a certainty. As if this wasn't enough of a tax to put upon American credulity we are further told that the Prince of Wales was never more popular with the English people than he is at this time. If these statements be true the English people must either have deteriorated, or we have been awfully misled as to their high ideas of honor etc.

Off for Ireland.

As recently announced in the DAILY NEWS on Monday Rev. P. McArdle went to New York from whence on Saturday he will sale fore Ireland, to be absent a number of weeks. We wish the reverend gentle man bon voyage and trust he will enjoy his visit to his native land.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

[Our Special Correspondence.]

WASHINGTON, July 6, 1891.

Secretary Foster isn't worrying to any appreciable extent over the dispute which has arisen between the Knights of Labor and the Federation of Labor over the cases of the seven members of the former organization who were discharged from the Bureau of Engraving and printing for cause. Nor has he the slightest idea that the trouble will prove to be a disturbing element in the Ohio campaign Mr. Foster offered to forget the past records of the discharged men and to give them work in the bureau as soon as the applicants who were ahead of them to go to work, but this eminently fair proposition was declined by the executive committee of the K. of L., which insisted that the discharged men should be at once reinstated to their old positions against the protest of the Federation of Labor, which claims, with justice, that it would be unfair to reinstate these men over the heads of other deserving applicants, but which is perfectly willing that the men should be again employed, if they will make their application and await their turn just as others have to do. The democrats are doing their best to persuade the Knights of Labor to attempt to carry the votes of that organization over to them in Ohio, but there is little probability that they can succeed, for the very simple reason that the Knights of Labor are not idiots.

The tin plate liar having failed both in his original mission and in that of his second choice, the convincing of a sensible public that a Treasury which was paying every claim presented at a hundred cents on the dollar and still keeping a surplus of millions of dollars constantly on hand was bankrupt, has now taken up as a good subject to lie about, Mr. Blaine's health, and we are informed by "Bar Harbor specials", written in the home offices that "Mr. Blaine is terribly ill and can scarcely remember events a week old" and more rot of the same sort. Officials of the State department have the very best of reasons for knowing that Mr. Blaine's mental powers are in tip-top condition, because they are constantly receiving communication from him relating to public business, and I saw a private letter written by his own hand on an important business matter, which was received here this morning, not an hour ago, which shows him not only to be all right, but to be carefully looking after his private interests as well as the country's foreign policy. Just let these fellows wait until Mr. Blaine returns to Washington this fall and they will see what a good memory he has and how active his brain can be.

"The right man in the right place" is what everyone says when discussing the appointment of Ex-Representative Wm. Edgar Simonds, of Connecticut, to be Commissioner of Patents. He is a practical man and thoroughly understands the business of the very important bureau which he has been selected to preside ever, having for years been at the head of a firm engaged in practice before the bureau, besides having been since 1884 lecturer on patent law in the Yale law school, and the author of several books on patent law and practice: including a "Digest of Patent cases", embracing all cases concerning patents decided by federal and State courts siuce the foundation of this Government, which is among the standard reference books of the profession. He was a member of the last Congress, during which he served as a member of the committee on Patents, where his knowledge enabled him to perform excellent service. He also has a good war record, having enlisted as a private and been promoted to a lieutenancy for gallantry on the field. He studied law after he was mustered out of the army, and has been Speaker of the House of the Connecticut legislature.

The schedule of the lines of ocean steamers with which Postmaster General Wanamaker has made contracts under the "subsidy" act of the last Congress, to carry the mails, will probably be made public this week, and just to show how sectional this administration is Mr. Wanamaker has seclected among others lines, running out of four Southern ports, Norfolk, Virginia; Tampa, Florida; Galveston Texas, and New Orleans, Louisiana.

Maj. Rathbone, of Ohio who has been chief Post office inspector since April 1889, is now Fourth Assistant Postmaster-General, and is expected that under the re-organization of the department now going on he will be given charge of the fourth-class postoffices, which have here to fore been in charge of the First assistant Maj. Rathbone's wide political experience and his rare faculty for judging character eminently fit him for the duty of looking after the postmasters below the Presidential grade, and it will be good business as well as good politics to assign to him.

To Keep the Baby Well.

A baby in the country is under the best conditions possible to resist the effects of the heat, writes Elizabeth R. Scovil, in The Ladies' Home Journal. Yet the mother should be always prepared for emergencies. Before leaving them she should procure a few powders of pepsin and bismuth, any simple remedy for indigestion, with full directions for its use. She should take with her, also, a bottle of lime-water and another of pancreatin, or one of the other preparations for peptonizing milk. The purity of milk is always open to question, because it absorbs germs so readily. That used for a baby should be sterilized to make it perfectly safe. This can be done in the morning and evening by putting the milk, fresh from the cow, in bottles of a size to hold enough for one meal each. Place these in a saucepan filled with cold water and set it on the stove where it will heat gradually. After the water boils for a short time, cork the bottle and let them remain in it for half an hour. Remove from the stove, and when the water is cool take out the bottles. If no ice is to be had, stand them in a stone jar containing water, and wrap the jar in wet flannel, or put it in a brook in a shady place. When a bottle is opened and all the milk is not used, throw away the remainder.

Killed by Masked Men

CHARLESTON, W. Va., July 3.—James Hawkins and Howard Dolson, returning Tuesday from Buffalo, where they had been with Joe Lockett, Jr., who had agreed to overtake them, were halted by two masked men. Dolson escap but Hawkins was shot and robbed. Before dying this morning he described his assailants. Dolson was arrested. He said Luther Glenn and Joe Lockett, Jr., were the masked men. They were arrested and jailed at winfield. The murderers got fifteen dollars.

Mileage Books May Drop.

The subject of mileage books is receiving a great deal of attention just now from general passenger agents. A movement is well under way in the Central Traffic association to quit issuing them altogether, and while the confidence of the passenger people that this will be accomplished soon is not very strong, yet the ultimate retirement of the books is believed in, by many. At the last meeting of the association in Chicago, a resolution was passed recommending to the managing officers the total abolition of mileage tickets within the association's territory. The subject possesses considerable interest to many travelers in this community.

LEAD IN CENTRE COUNTY.

A PAYING VEIN OF BLACK LEA FOUND NEAR BELLEF NTE.

On Monday a resident of Bellefonte showed us a lump of black lead-ore that was found on land near Bellefonte. We were also shown piece of the metal after it had been analyzed and it certainly very much resembles black lead. Gentleman who had the specimens assured us that he had investigated where the find was made and he is satisfied that there is a vein of lead there of nnknowo quantity but, with out doubt, quite large. It is located only about three feet below the surface and a mine could be operated without great expense but with cousiderable profit.

The gentleman holds the location of the ore as his secret but for a certain consideration he will disclose the secret of it's whereabouts and be only too willing to help develop the mine. The property owner, on whose land the ore may be, should not hesitate to handsomely pay the man who made the discovery and steps should at once be taken to develop the new industry, as black lead is a very valuable metal and a mine of that ore is worth considerable to the owner.

Important Trade Name Decision.

Judge Thayer, of the United States Circuit Court at St. Louis, has recently handed down an opinion, and granted a perpetual injunction against the defendants in the case of The Hostetter Company against the Bruggeman, Reinert Distilling Co., Alias "Gold Spring Distilling Co.," prohibiting the advertising, manufacturing or selling of any article of stomach bitters, either in bulk, by the gallon or otherwise, or in any way making use of the name "Hostetter" except in connection with the sale of the genuine bitters, which are always sold in bottles securely sealed; and also prohibiting the sale of any bitters in bulk though the name "Hostetter" be not used, but the suggestion made to the purchaser that he can put them in the empty Hostetter bottles, and purchasers would not discover the difference. His decision supports The Hostetter Company in the exclusive use of the name "Hostetter" in connection with either the manufacture or sale of stomach bitters in any manner or form whatsoever, and firmly establishes its ownership in the name "Hostetter" as a "TRADE NAME."

New Wholesale House.

The well known firm of Janney & Andrews, Philadelphia, after an existence of nearly 30 years, was dissolved June 30th by mutual consent, B. W. Andrews, for years the active man on the street, with George M. Randle, a young man brought up in the old house, has formed a new firm under the style of ,B. W Andrews & Co," for the purpose of carrying on the wholesale grocery and canned goods commission buisness, with offices and warehouse at Nos 10 and 12 North Fourth street. They have taken with them a strong force of the active young men from the old stand and also the principal canned goods commission accounts which will make a leading featuree of the buisness.

Cheap Coffee in Tennessee.

KNOXVILLE, July 3—Knoxville is to-day the cheapest coffee market in the United States- Arbuckles the coffee merchant of New York, is attempting to drive out comfetition and in a point. He is flooding this territory with circular letters offering best Ariosa roasted coffee for a little over twenty one cents fer found, with two per cent. discount for cash within ten days. This is to the retail merchants, and is so cheab that merchants anywhere in a radius of one hudred to five hundred miles of Knoxville can afford to buy it here and pay freight.

The State College.

Mr. Hiram Young, of the York Dispatch, attended commencement exercises at State College last week and in his Monday's paper has the following to say regarding that institution: "The state college promises to become very popular, Its appliances for giving a most practical education are unequalled by any college of English and classic training. We had visited this college a year ago. We find the progress and the preparations are most extensive. The State has again appropriated $150,000 to complete and extend its usefulness. This college is destined to rival the great Cornell Institute of New York and that class of schools of practical training. The boy or girl graduating at the State College comes out prepared to fill a place of usefulness or to at once fill a situation in some profitable business. Study is combined with work, habits of industry combined with knowledge, science and skill at this school.

The location is away from temptation of city life, on a large farm. The college has it laboratory, work shop, ladies department, professors homes and other appartments. To be convinced of the value of this growing important state college, it is well to visit it, and get correct and full information. The intelligent interested visitor must come away most favorably impressed with the importance and great future of our State College. Agriculture, mechanics, English and the classics all are most thoroughly taught. The great growth of these industries and the wealth and progress of State and Nation demand in the growing future that the State keep up with the progress in supplying its youth with such a great practical college of learning."

A Few Definitions.

The poet, Tennyson, can take a worthless sheet of paper, and, by writing a poem on it, make it worth sixty-five thousand dollars. That's genious.

Vanderbilt can write a few words on a sheet of paper, and make it worth five million dollars. That's capital.

The United States can take an ounce and a quarter of gold and stamp upon it an "eagle bird" and make it worth twenty dollars. That's money.

The mechanic can take the material worth five dollars and make into a watch worth one hundred dollars, That's skill.

The merchant can take an article worth seventy-five cents and sell it for a dollar. That's business.

A lady can purchase a very comfortable bonnet for three dollars and seventy-five cents, but she prefers one that costs twenty-seven dollars. That's foolishness.

The ditch digger works ten hours a day and shovels three or four tons of earth for two dollars- That's labor.

Will Certainly be Held Here.

Some time ago we made mention of the fact that an effort was made to have the democratic State Convention held in Bellefonte this year. We now informed that the efforts put forth to have it held here are meeting with subcess and it now seems almost a certainty that the next democratic state convention will be held in Bellefonte sometime in the latter part of August. The selection of the place has been left to a committee of mine, of which committee Col. J. L. Spangler is a member. For other members who live nearest this place, are inclined to favor Bellefonte and the only thing yet remaining to do is to assure the gentlemen that Bellefonte can accommodate the crowd and Bellefonte will get it.

Pay Up please.

We are obliged to ask our subscribers and others owing this office for advertising and job work to please pay up. We are badly in need of money and you will do us an everlasting favor by paying what you owe us. A newspaper can't be forever run on wind. Some of our subscribers are in arrears for almost two years. Everybody should remember that the more promptly they pay the better paper we will be able to give them. Now, who will be the first to pay their bill?

WANTED.—A good wife. A lady between the ages of 20 and 35 preferred. Must be good looking and accomplished, but not rich, as I have money enough for both. Must be of respectable family and understand how to keep house. Address, "HUSBAND," care DAILY NEWS office.

Happily Wedded.

CHIEF BURGESS BARTON, OF UNIONVILLE, MARRIED TUESDAY EVENING.

Cupid is all the time playing his pranks and uniting youthful loving hearts for better or for worse but in the event of the wedding celebrated Tuesday evening, methinks it will be for the better, as it will certainly add dignity to the office and to the Chief Burgess to have a Mrs. Chief Burgess around.

It is therefore our pleasant duty to chronicle the marriage, on Tuesday evening about eight o'clock, by the Rev. George Elliott, at his residence on Linn street in this place, of Mr. Joseph T. Barton and Miss Alice M. Smith, both of Unionville. The happy couple came to Bellefonte on the 4.30 train in the afternoon, and took rooms at the Brockerhoff house until the appointed hour. After the ceremony the newly made bride and groom departed on the late train for Lock Haven where they spent the night returning to their home to-day.

Mr. Joseph Barton is one of the brightest and best known young business men of Unionville. He is now engaged in the grain and coal business and in addition is book-keeper in the store of Ex-county com issioner A. J. Griest. At the recent election Mr. Barton, being somewhat of a politician and taking considerable interest in the doings of both parties, was elected Chief Burgess of Unionville borough by a good majority. It is needless to say he has filled the office very acceptably. Miss Smith the bride, is a daughter of Mr. William D. Smith, deceased, and is a most estimable and accomplished young lady who will undoubtedly make a very fitting life partner for the happy groom. The DAILY NEWS begs to extend to Mr. and Mrs. Barton its best wishes and kindest congratulations.

Loeb—Newman.

On Tuesday afternoon at 2 o'clock at the resident of Mr. William Grauer, on Bishop street Miss Joephine Newman, sister of Mrs Grauer, was wedded to Mr Morris Loeb, brother of Mr. Adolph Loeb, of Mahanoy City, Pa. The Hebrew ceremony was performed by Rabbi Levy, of Williamsport. Only about thirty invited relatives of both parties were present. The presents were numerous and valuable. The couple departed for a brief wedding tour. Congratulations and best wishes.

—On Monday evening Miss Jennie Crittenden entertained a number of her friends at the residence of her sister, Mrs. John Ardell, on East Linn street, in honor of her friend, Miss Jennie Eurley, of Tyrone. Several visitors were present among whom were Miss Davis, Mr. Galley and Mrs Robert Jackson. A good time was reported by the party of 40 or more persons present. To lend excitement to the affair the fire alarm sounded, all immediately rushed for the scene of the fire, but on discovering where and what it was soon returned to resume the festivities of the evening which were kept up until a late hour.

FOURTH OF JULY

ONE OF THE GRANDEST DEMONSTRATIONS EVER WITNESSED IN BELLEFONTE.

Twenty Thousand People Here

A FULL DAY'S AMUSEMENT—THE PARADE LARGE AND FINE—MILITARY DRILL AND BASE A AND A MAGNIFICENT DISPLAY OF FIREWORKS.

The 115th anniversary day of America independence is past and gone and in the celebration of that event Bellefonte was strictly in it. Never before has there been such a demonstration in Central Pennsylvania as there was in Bellefonte on last Saturday. Through general invitations, judicious advertising with several hundred handsome posters and repeated local notice through the columns of the DAILY NEWS and Republican the people of the surrounding six couties were thoroughly informed as to what Bellefonue would have and it seemed as if every person that could come did come. Fully twenty thousand people journeyed this way to see the fourth from the eleven hills of Bellefonte and in all that vast multitude there was not one who felt any disappointment with the day's entertainment.

As announced in the DAILY NEWS of Friday the visitors began to arrive on Friday evening. It was just a little past 7 o'clock when the Sheridan Troop, looking somewhat tired and travel-stained after their long march, but none the less handsome and imposing for all that, entered town under escort of a squad of horsemen who had gone out to meet them. They created a very favorable inpression as they rode through Bellefonte on the way to their headquarters at the Cummings House. The Zion and Pleasant Gap bands were already in town and about eight o'clock started out with detachments of the two fire companies to parade but a rain coming on put an end to all such diversion. The evening train east brought nine car loads of people to Bellefonte. On this train were the Hope Hose Company, of Philipsburg, with the Clearfield band, and the Rescue Hook and Ladder Company, of Curwensville. The heavy rain falling at the time precluded anything in the shape of a parade, the companies being escorted as rapidly as possible to their respective headquarters. Notwithstanding the inclement weather a general good time was enjoyed by a large number until late in the night.

Saturday morning dawned bright and auspicious and with the rising of the sun the town presented a gala appearance. The decorations were profuse all through the business part of the town. One big arch over High street bridge bore a word "Welcome." Another arch over High street up at the diamond bore the inscription, "Virtue, Liberty and Independence." The grand stand in the diamond presented a most beautiful appearance, and everywhere the eye would turn was to be seen a profusion of evergreen, bunting and flags artistically arrayed and handsomely displayed.

The morning trains brought about forty car loads of strangers to Bellefonte. They also brought the Milton Steam Fire Engine company and band; the Reliance, of Philipsburg and band; the Hand in Hand and Good Will of Lock Haven; G. A. R. Posts No. 419 and 261. Saturday morning was spent in general preparation and when ten o'clock drew near the parade began to form. The first division formed on High street with right resting on Spring; the second and third divisions on North Spring and Howard street, and the fourth division on North Water street Promptly at 11 o'clock the command was given and the parade began to move. A DAILY NEWS reporter at the grand stand took down the order in which the parade was formed and gives it as follows:

First came the police officers opening the street.

First Division.

Chief Marshall, Col. J L. Spangler; chief of staff, Col. D. S. Keller; Aides—J. C. Meyer, E. R. Chambers, W. E. Gray, W. Fred Reynolds, W. L. Malin and Samuel Garman.

And the following business houses floats: Bellefonte Fuel and Supply Co., Garman's Store, W. T. Hillibish and Co., Frank Naginey, Beezer Brothers, Dr. I N Bush, Chain Works Joseph Bros., Frank B. Stover. H A. McKee & Bro., Phoenix Plaining Mill, Hoover & Miller, Schreyer's Carpet Store, W, B. Maitland, Brown's Novelty Store, Centre Democrat, W. R. Brachbill, Ed. K. Rhodes—2 floats, Gazette, A. M. Mott, Racket Store—3 floats, Logan Machine Works, Jenkins & Lingle, H. B. Shaffer, McCalmont & Co. and then followed the Fantastics in which was the "Soap town Fire Brigade"

The route of parade was from Spring to Bishop, thence to Allegheney to Linn, to Armour, to Curtin, to Spring, to Lamb, to Thomas, to High' up High to Diamond where the parade was dismissed.

The speakers mounted the grand stand and short and spicy speeches were made by Ex-Governor Curtin, Judge Furst, Col. Spangler and Col Keller, after which announcement was made of the afternoon program and then the crowd dispersed for dinner.

In The Afternoon.

The first thing on the programe in the afternoon was the cavalry drill by the Sheridan Troop in the glass works meadow. Fully ten thousand people had assembled on the grounds at half-past two the hour set for the drill. The cavalry made their appearance under escort of Gen'l Curtin and for almost an hour they held the undivided attention and drew forth repeated applaus for their magnificent drill work, and the verdict of all was that the State has reason to be proud of Sheridan Troop and that it has greater reason to be proud of such an excellent Captain as Capt C. S. W. Jones.

After the cavalry drill came the game of base ball between the Philadelphia P. R. R. nine and the home team. The game was called promptly at 3 o'clock and lasted one hour and fortyminutes, resulting in a victory for the P. R. R's. by a score of 8 to 7. This was the champion game, being the third aunal game played between the P. R. R. and Bellefonte. Saturday's game was one of the best played and most hotly contested of any ever played on the Bellefonte diamond.

At seven o'clock in the evening the Milton Military band gave a most delightful hour's concert on the grand stand in the diamond, at the conclusion of which the day's celebration closed with a magnificent display of fireworks put off under direction of Mr. J. D. Sourbeck The day over the crowd all departed on the several specials for their respective homes and we doubt if there was one person who went to his home regretting that he had been here.

Notes of the day

The firecracker did not play a very prominent part in the day's jubilee.

Everybody voted the parade the best ever seen outside the large cities.

The Hope Hose and Reliance Companies, and the Amateur band of Philipsburg, drew forth many complimentary remarks.

The Rescue boys, of Curwensville, are all big fellows and parade with the precision of drilled soldiers.

The Milton fire company was not as large as it might be but what was here presented a good appearance, and what it may have lacked in numbers was more than made up in the excellent band it brought along.

In the Industrial parade were many handsome floats and, although there were two or three that were universally believed to be the most beautiful, all were marvels of mechanical skill and ingeunity.

Although there were more drunks in Bellefonte Friday night and Saturday than there has been for a long time yet there were comparatively few considering the crowd of people in town, and onlytwo disturbances during the entire day and those two of little consequence.

—An exchange says: In the beginning God created the heavens, the earth and all things therein. He then created man and woman, and left the loafers on the corners, and in due time they multiplied and then spread into the postoffices, and the depots, and the stores. In the latter places they sit and explain states national problems that have vexed great minds, and exist partially by sampling goods. While he is thus engaged his wife is out washing for her neighbors, and the poor, helpless children are left at home to care for themselves as best they can. There is nothing more noticeable than a loafer.

At this season of the year when malaria lurks in the air, and bad colds not an unfrequent visitor, we long for a quick and effective remedy. There is scarcely a home without a sufferer from some of the many ills the flesh is heir to. A stimulant is after the intermediator. It is quick and effective. It brings relief and saves doctors bills. We can reccommend Mr. Max Klein for anything in the liquor line. His silver age Rye at $1.50 per quart is the best whiskey in the market. He will sell any Pennsylvania Rye Whiskey six years old, at 1.00 for each quart or six for $5.00. Send for his price list and catalogue and mention this paper Address MAX KLEIN,

A Beautiful Window.

Joseph Brothers have fixed up one of the handsomest windows in Bellefonte. In the background is a grove of spruce near which stands the Washington homestead. In front is a cherry tree, laden with fruit, which hasjust been cut down by the youthful "father of his country," who stands there with his hatchet in in hand, and a very severe countenance. In front of that is a fountain, the cool spray of water playing upwards and descending into a lovely basin. Patriotic colors are displayed to great advantage and the whole presents a picture of marvelous beauty.

—There were lots of peanut stands in Bellefonte on Saturday.

—Thus far there has not been much time or the ice man to get in his work.

—A very delightful young ladies party was held on Linn street last night.

—It is said that by a fireworks accident fin Tyrone on Saturday a boy was killed.

—Now that the Fourth is over let the people of Bellefonte get down to business.

—All the stores closed during the parade on Saturday and also in the evening.

—From all accounts there were quite a number of swelled heads on Sunday morning.

—All the home organizations deserve credit for their fine appearance on Saturday.

—Sunday was a lovely day but it seemed unusually quiet after all the excitement of Saturday.

—The Logans' festival, in the court house yard on Saturday, was very freely patronized.

—Irl Hicks prophesied rain on June 30th and July 1st and 2nd. He seems to have it to a dot.

—The Coronet Hook and Ladder company was the first company at the fire on Saturday night.

—The Logans cleared about one hundred and seventy-five dollars at their festival on Saturday.

—The Centre Hallites seem inclined to poke fun at Bellefonte's race track movement, all because they have the granger's picnic grounds over there. Never mind, you fellows; we'll show you a thing or two yet before the race track is entirely "busted."

—One of the lengthiest legal documents entered on record in the Register's office for many a year is the will of Mr. Moses Thompson, just probated. It is spread over more than twenty pages of legal cap and represents an estate valued at about one half million of dollars, with few if any, incumbrances. The bulk of the property goes to the children.

—On Saturday morning some boys were shooting fire-crackers at the residence of Mr. Cherry, on Willow Bank street. A lighted cracker was thrown on an upstairs porch where some clothing was hanging and the explosion set fire to the same. When discovered a hole was already burned through the roof of the porch. As there were no men around the neighboring ladies formed a bucket brigade and by dint of hard labor succeeded in putting out the fire.

KILLED ON THE RAIL

MR. CHRIST PETERS MEETS A HORRIBLE DEATH THIS MORNING.

Mr. Christ Peters, a trackman on the Bald Eagle railroad was killed at the round house here this morning about 9 o'clock. Mr. Peters was unloading a car of coal onto the wharf when the Snow Shoe Engine with three cars went in on the Y. to turn. The cars were backed on the track and the trainmen then attempted to make a flying switch, run the engine on one track and the cars on another. Mr. Peters was on the front end of the first car. The engine got through all right but the switch was not turned in time and the cars ran off the track.

Mr. Peters was thrown off and one car and half of another passed over him, cutting his right limb in three pieces and splitting his left limb and also cutting his body in two. The unfortunate man lived only a few minutes.

Mr. Peters lived in Milesburg, was aged about 40 years. He was married and leaves a wife and two children to mourn their loss. The funeral will likely occur to-morrow sometime.

Beck Family Reunion.

A reunion of the surviving members of John Beck's family was held last week at the home of W. H. Dornblazer, in Lamar township.

Those who survive Mr. John Beck's family, which consisted originally of six sons and six daughters, are Mr. Charles Beck, of Lamar, aged 79 years, Mr. Joseph Beck, of Prarie Home, Ill., aged 71 years and Mrs. Philip Walters, of Snydertown, aged 67 years.

The reunion of this family held on the 24th inst. at W. H. Dornblasser's son-in-law of Charles Beck, and with whom Mr. Beck has his home, proved to be a very pleasant and interesting occasion. Those present were Charles Beck, of Lamar; Joseph Beck and daughter-in-law, Mrs. Wells Beck and two children, of Prarie Home, Ill.; Philip Walters and wife ,of Snydertown, Mr. J Shannon McCormick, a son-in-law of Mrs. Beck, of State College; Mr. George W. Smith and wife, of Topeka, Kansas; Luther Beck and wife, of Snydertown; Henry Beck of Bellefonte; Miss Emma Dornblaser, of Salona; Miss Clara Krape, of Lamar; Miss Amanda Walters of Snydertown; Miss Susan Martin, of Lamar; Mrs. John Beck, Miss Emma Beck and Mrs. Williamson Porter, of Mackeyville; Mr. Wm. F. Beck and family of Lock Haven, and Rev. H. A. Dietterick, wife and daughter, of Salona. A most excellent dinner was served, after which we were favored with very fine instrumental music by Wm. F. Beck, his three sons and Mr. Arthur Dornblaser, after which Rev· Deitterick offered prayer, which was followed by singing and addresses by Rev Deittrick and Messrs Charles, Henry and Joseph Beck, all of whom spoke very feelingly of the solemnity of the occasion, and sadness of parting, perhaps never to meet again on the shores of time, but all expressed bright hopes of meeting again in a better world. The doxology was then sung and the benediction pronounced by the pastor. It was an occasion never to be forgotten. Ice cream was then served, after which all left for their homes. Thursday morning Mr. Joseph Beck and Mrs. Wells Beck and children left for their homes in the far west. Mrs. W. H. Dornblaser and family did all in their power to make the occasion a most pleasant one and they know how to do it, for which they have the thanks of all present.

Fifty Dollars Reward.

Is offered for the arrest and conviction of a person who broke into a tailor shop at Coalport and stole fifty suits of clothing· Tne man who did it certainly intended to go well dressed.

He Stole a Horse

We have heard it said of some men that they would steal anything, even to a red hot cooking stove, but there is a case out in Snow Shoe and which will come before the court next term, in which a man is charged with stealing a house Who ever heard of a man mean enough to steal a house, and that house his own; and yet this is just exactly what this man is charged with doing. The man so chargee is at Mr. Fye and the prossecutars are Hons. J. H. Hot and Jno. H. Orvis.

To Keep the House Cool.

Much of the heat of our houses is supplied by the kitchen range, which Biddet keeps red-hot even in the dog-days, says The Ladies' Home Journnl. Prevent this by using a gas stove or oil stove as far as possible. Then shut up tight all rooms not in use. Not only should the shutters and windows be closed, but the blinds must be lowered to exelude every ray of light, and the doors locked to prevent the running in and out of the children, who thus admit waves of heated air. Perhaps it would be neither wise nor practicable to hermetically seal all the rooms of a house but one room, at least, can be so treated—the parlor, and also the dining room between meals; the room selected should be closed early in the morning while the air has some freshness, and before the snn strikes the windows; then it should not be opened until late in the afternoon.

Every house should have an accessible trap door in its roof, and when this is left open, a current of heated air must rise through it and make a general drought over all the house. Awnings should be light in color, and should be at all windows and doors except those to the north. They are great helps in keeping ont glare, but they should be chosen of a kind which is readily raised and lowered. After sundown, a plentiful watering of your street and pavement, and of all the garden you possess, will cool the air wonderfully.

Who can Beat It?

Mrs. Kate Moore, of Petersburg, better known as "Aunt Kate" is in her 78th year. On last Monday, June 22d, at 7 o'clock in the morning she started for the cherry trees, laid both hands on the top rail of a five rail post fence and jumped over climbed to the top of a 12 foot ladder picked one gallons of cherries and seeded eleven gallon by hand until 4 o'clock and they were seeded not mashed. To finish up the day she ironed clothes until bed time and said she did not feel tired. Any one doubting this can refer to J. C. N, an eye witness.

Fifteen Years

The defaulting treasurer, of Philadelphia, Mr. Bardsley, was on Thursday sentenced fifteen years at hard labor in the penitentiary and a fine equal to the amount of his embizzlement. Pretty tough dose when one considers the fact that Bardsley was not alone in the stupendous robbery and that the authorities are not trying to find out who was with him. And further that Mr. Bardsley's true confession, which implicated some very high political actotums, was never published but one doctored up to suit the occasion instead. Oh! where is justice gone?

Work for Lynchers.

KEOKUK, July 2—Albert Parnitzka shot and killed James Warner, near Utica, Ia., last night. Parnitzka entered the room of Warner's sister and made indecent proposals. The girl refused to submit to him and he shot her, the bullet entering her cheek. When Warner drove him from the house Parnitzka then secured a rifle and shot Warner, the latter dying instantly. Lynching parties are scouring the country in search of the murderer.

TO CONSUMPTIVES

The undersigned having been restored to health by simple means, after suffering for several years with a severe lung affection, and that dread disease Consumption," is anxious to make known to his fellow sufferers the means of cure. To those who desire it, he will cheerfully send (free of charge) a copy of the prescription used, which they will find a sure cure for Consumption, Asthma, Catarrh, Bronchitis and all throat and lung Maladies. He hopes all sufferers will try his Remedy, as it is invaluable. Those desiring the prescription, which will cost them nothing and may prove a blessing, will please address REV. EDWARD A. WILSON, Williamsburg, Kings County, New York.

The Picnic.

The Patrons' picnic in Grange Park will begin this year on Monday, Sept. 14th. Camping will begin on the Saturday previous, as many tent holders express their desire of spending Sunday upon the camp ground· Arrangements have also been made for holding religious services on Sunday on the ground, at which one of the Centre Hall ministers will officiate.

They Say.

That Ridgway has a George W. Childs.

That shooting sparrows is now the order of the day with the boys.

That June crop of weddings was not up to the number of former years.

That the American Flag will have 44 bright stars in its firmament after the 4th of July.

That Teachers' salaries in the United States annually amount to more than $60,000,000.

That since we are made out of dust it is reasonable to persume that the negro is made of coal dust.

That the Swampoodle Whistling Club has been changed into a Cooking Club, at the suggestion of the mothers of the girls who were practicing the seductive art.

That the newspapers poke a good deal of fun at the summer girl, but many know that the Summer girl and a narrow seated buggy and a moonlight night make a very attract ive combination.

That Clearfield has a man so lazy that he longs for the power of a Joshua, that he may command the sun to stand still so that it will not be necessary for him to move to keep in the shade of his tree.

That an Osceola depating socitety is discussing the question as to which is the angrier, the husband goes home and finds that dinner is not ready or the wife who has dinner ready and whose husband does not come home. It is believed that the depate will end in a draw.

How to Keep Cool.

Cleanliness not only next to godliness, is part of coolness, says The Ladies' Home Journal. So take a plunge bath in the morning, letting the watter be tepid, and afterward giving yourself to cold shower. Omit starch from your clothes as far as possible Eat a light breakfast. Greasy food, or a great quantity of food, taken in the morning, will most certainly heat your stomach for the entire day. A woman who stays in the city and is always cool, gives this as her bill of fare: A cup of coffee in the morning, with bread and butter· a luncheon of cold beef and baked potato, with lemonade or iced tea; and a dinner after sunset consisting of a little soup, a bit of meat and one hot vegetable, a cool green salad, a cold dessert, and a small cup of coffee. Keep this in mind also; there is no better preventive against heat than good temper, when you combine good bathing, proper food, and evenness of disposition with it.

Merit Wins.

We desire to say to our citizens, that for years we have been selling Dr King's New Discovery for Consumption, Dr King's New Life Pills, Bucklen's Arnica Salve and Electric Bitters, and have never handled remedies that sell as well, or that have given such universal satisfaction. We do not hesitate to guarantee them every time, and we stand ready to refund the purchase price, if satisfactory results do not follow their use. These remedies have won their great popularity purely on their merits. C M Parrish, druggist·

No Judicial District.

Nowhat Govenor Patterson vetoed the Judicial apportionment bill Centre County will not be of itself a separate Judicial district. This will make necessary the election of another· Associate Judge in 1892.

When Baby was sick, we gave her Castoria.
When she was a Child, she cried for Castoria.
When she became Miss, she clung to Castoria.
When she had Children, she gave them Castoria.

—The "Centre Democrat's" investigation of the price of arc light in surrounding towns and the comparison made with Bellefonte seems to be a little unfavorable for this place, but we are inclined to think if the investigation had gone a little further discoveries would have been made that would not have shown Bellefonte in such a bad light after all. It is always best to investigate in full and then give all of the information to the public.

ELIXIR OF LIFE AND HEALTH.
is one that promotes digestion, improves the appetite, cleanses the liver, purifies the blood, and stimulates brain and nerves without injurious reaction, and one that may be taken alike by adult or infant· Profane compounds, made of vile rum or bad whiskey, sweetened and flavored, under the titles of bitters, tonics, &c, produce effects far worse than the disease for which they are taken.

Vinegar Bitters is a pure tonic, a nervine without being narcotic, a purifier without poison, a liver tonic without purging, and above all, a life-giving stimulant without alcohol. The only medicine with such powers in the world.

A GENUINE TEMPERANCE BEVERAGE, far surpassing alcohol in any shape as a tonic it might be called

LIQUID LIFE,
since it stimulates, invigorates and regulates digestion, nutrition, secretion, excretion, respiration, and all the functions whereby life is maintained—we literally take in vitality in spoonsful,

It is too much to assert that the equal of Vinegar Bitters does not exist, and no counterpart or compound with similar virtues has ever been known.

CALIFORNIA,
if remarkable for nothing else, would be immortalized by the production of the medicinal fruits roots and herbs of which this Bitters is composed. Many of them used by the Indians and the medical profession in the treatment of chills and fevers rheumatism, catarrh, consumption, neuralgia headaches, liver complaint, kidney disease, jaundice, gout, piles, boils, skin diseases, &c. &c., too numerous to mention, but easily understood when the action of the Bitters on the vital functions is remembered. The discovery was partly accidental but the present

PERFECT BITTERS IS THE RESULT OF SCIENCE.
Millions of sufferers have gratefully and gladly endorsed, during the past quarter of a century the wonderful success of this

PHENOMENAL TONIC OF THE WORLD.
In order to meet every probable demand, two formulas of the same ingredients are now put up.

THE NEW STYLE, PLEASANT TO THE TASTE, AND EXPRESSLY ADAPTED TO DELICATE WOMEN AND CHILDREN.

REMEMBER,
There is no disease of low vitality, debility of functions, or nervous prostration for which

THE STORY OF LIFE.

Only the same old story, told in a different strain;
Sometimes a smile of gladness, and then a stab of pain;
Sometimes a flash of sunlight, again the drifting rain.

Sometimes it seems to borrow from the crimson rose its hue;
Sometimes black with thunder, then changed to a brilliant blue;
Sometimes as false as Satans, sometimes as Heaven true.

Only the same old story! But, O, how the changes ring!
Prophet and priest and peasant, soldier and scholar and king;
Sometimes the warmest hand-clasp leaves in the palm a sting.

Sometimes in the hush of even, sometimes in the midday strife,
Sometimes with dove like calmness, sometimes with passions rife,
We dream it, write it, live it, this weird, wild story of life.

—[Boston Transcript.

PUTTING THE BABY ASLEEP.

BY MRS. M. L. MORRISON.

Mrs. Dewry paused in the pretty little room to adjust her bonnet before the mirror, which mirror reflected a fire lit, white curtained nest, where a babe slept in his pink draped crib, and a young girl sat sewing among the house plants by the window.

"You'll have no trouble, Doll," she said for the hundredth time, "if you keep the room quiet. This is his first nap to-day, and probably he won't wake until I return."

Doll nodded, afraid to trust her voice in an atmosphere where sounds were so pregnant of disaster. Mrs. Dewry gave the bonnet one last criticism and went softly out. Doll was alone with her responsibility. This was the first infant in the family since her own babyhood, and she was unprepared for the change. She told herself that she never would have come to Granger to visit her sister if she had anticipated anything like this. What if the cradle should develop contents of a colicy or convulsive nature? In her nervousness she dropped her thread. The kitten ran after the spool and brought down the tongs with a clatter like stage thunder. One chubby arm stood upright above the cradle. Doll thrust the kitten out of a door which squeaked with the blood curdling effect of an Irish banshee. Rap! rap! went some one at the inner door. Doll had just lifted the tongs; down they came now, clattering. Rap! rap! rap! came the thunder. The cradle began to move.

"Oh, hush!" whispered poor Doll, admitting the guilty party, who proved to be the washwoman, with the clean clothes on her head and an offended face.

"Is Mrs. Dewry here?" shouted the woman, "I've brought them sheets she accused me of stealing—"

"Oh, don't! The baby!"

It was too late. The cradle had resolved itself into a commotion of flying legs and arms. Doll found the baby and began to walk up and down the room, singing—

"Go, go away, washeewoman, go,
Come, come, some other day,
Mrs. Dewry's gone!"

Then in an authoritative tone—

"I can't talk to you now. Leave the clothes and go."

"Go, go, go, washeewoman, go!
Auntie Dollie can't talk, talk now."

"Well, I want you should tell her I brought them sheets," pursued the Xantippe in the dulcet tones of a savage on the war path. "Next time she talks of stealing——"

For an amiable person, Doll closed the door with considerable emphasis. Singing and walking, she tranquilized her small tyrant, and there ensued an interval of rest. Bang—crash—tumble—clatter! The bundle of clothes had rolled off a chair into a work basket and filled a china cuspidor with scissors and thread. The cradle resembled a windmill. Poor Doll tugged out the motive power, and with very flushed face continued her vocal and pedestrian exercises. Half an hour elapsed ere "jocund peace" reigned once again. She had just laid the heavy little head on its pillow when "ring!" went the door bell. Doll shut her lips together.

"That won't wake him if I don't walk around and talk to any one. Sister isn't at home, and I won't be, either."

"Ring!" went the bell with greater emphasis.

"I'll try and be perfectly quiet," thought Doll. "I've read that that is what the American women need to learn, to be quiet, to just be perfectly still and rest their nerves. I'll go on with my sewing and pretend I'm not worried. I'll think—let me see, I'll think of Ruskin. Why should he have gone mad? I don't suppose he was ever left with a sleeping baby in a settlement of dancing Indians. Gracious!"

"Ting-ling-ling-ling-ling!"

"It must be those boys again after their chicken. They've been here three times after the thing, and that's just the way they ring."

The cradle began to sway.

"Go away?" said Doll, opening the window a little. "I know who you are, and I don't want to see you. Go right away this minute!"

Steps passed off the porch, and Doll sank back, happy but exhausted.

"I didn't breathe again until you came," she declared to her sister. "I never was so glad to see you in my life."

"I shouldn't wonder if there were some one in town whom you'll be more glad to see," laughed her brother in law. "I saw Harry Burton on the hotel steps this afternoon."

Doll colored happily. At home there was a crowd of young people, her own brothers and sisters and their friends, and Harry had whispered, at parting, "I never can see you alone here. I'm going over to Granger for one quiet evening." And she knew what happiness would come to her when that "quiet evening" befell. But she had never hoped that he would come so soon.

"He'll be here to-night," predicted Mrs. Dewry with delightful cheerfulness. "Nurse will be back, and I'll leave baby with her, and James and I will go to the revival."

It was still early when Mrs. Dewry, gloved and bonneted, rushed into the lighted parlor where her sister sat dreaming.

"Oh, Doll, get your hat, quick! Harry Burton's at church with that Blodgett girl from home. I wouldn't have you miss going for the world! He will think you're staying home for him."

"I'm not—I wouldn't. Oh, where's my shawl?" she cried.

Her hands grew suddenly cold; she felt excited. So great was the shock that, save for a physical sickness, she felt exhilarated, as though something good had happened.

They hurried across the street. The church was only a short distance from the house. Mr. Dewry was waiting for them outside.

"There's such a crowd I'm afraid you'll not find a seat," he said anxiously.

However, an usher guided them up the thronged, brilliantly lighted aisle to a half filled pew. Doll's ears were ringing. She felt blind and moved mechanically. It was not until she was seated that she became conscious of a well known hand holding a hymnal close beside her. She turned quickly; her shawl was brushing the arm of Harry Burton. How white and set his face was, and he made no motion of recognition.

"It is because he thinks that I'll be jealous," thought Doll. "I'll show him that I don't care enough to behave in any unusual way. Good evening, Harry," she whispered.

He turned such a peculiar face toward her that she felt it to be a question.

"What surprises you?" she asked. "Didn't you know I was in the city?"

He bent his head, but did not speak. She knew that he would not have done so under any circumstances; his respect for his faith had always held him silent in the house of worship.

It was the strangest evening of her life. To be with Harry, and yet to know that he was with another! There seemed something tragic in finding the hymns for herself with Harry so close. A lump rose in her throat, until she found difficulty in singing. But gradually the solemnity of the place overcame her sense of individuality, and she forgot, in the enthusiasm of the hour, the ache of her one girlish heart.

The last hymn was sung, the vast congregation had risen, and Doll, suddenly recalled to earthly pangs, had turned toward the aisle, when she felt a familiar hand adjusting her shawl. Harry had forgotten that his attentions for the evening should have been given to another. Half his life he had been Doll's escort; the little checked blue shawl was as familiar to him as his own hat, and seemed as natural for him to take care of. Doll caught a glimpse of his companion standing awkwardly alone.

"You have forgotten Miss Blodgett," she whispered.

"But I want to see you. I must see you for a moment," he answered.

"Come over to sister's after you take her home. I'll wait on the porch."

"You haven't an ounce of pride," scolded Mrs. Dewry.

"How could I?" replied Doll, with a gentle face. "It's only Harry, and one doesn't feel angry at anything after such a meeting."

She had not long to wait before a tall, dark form appeared at the gate.

"Why don't you come in?" asked Doll in surprise.

"Do you want me to? May I?"

"May you! Why, of course! How strangely you act and speak!"

"Why shouldn't I, after you've ordered me off the premises once to-day?"

Doll gave a little cry and ran down the steps toward him.

"Oh, Harry Burton—you don't—you can't mean that it was you who rang the bell this afternoon?"

"You told me that you knew who it was," he replied.

Mrs. Dewry woke her sleepy husband.

"Just listen," she gasped. "What can those two be laughing about? Doll don't think of waking the baby now."

But, good sister that she was, she was awake when Doll paused at her door, and came out in the hall to be kissed and confided in.

"It's all settled," whispered Doll. "We're to be married the last of next month, and I'm to go home at once to get ready."

"But what is the object of such haste?" Doll stifled a laugh.

"Harry says he wants me away from here as soon as possible. He's afraid I'll ruin my temper putting the baby to sleep.

They Go in at the Roof.

Swift & Co., the great Chicago dressed meat concern, have built a new slaughter house at the Union Stock Yards in Chicago, which is a marked novelty in structures of this sort. Instead of receiving the cattle on the ground floor they are driven to the roof of a four story building by means of a long incline. On this roof there are 24 large pens, with a capacity for accommodating 1,000 head of cattle at one time. The roof is laid with block pavement and is made perfectly tight by the use of tar and cement. The slaughtering is done upon the upper floor, the various steps in the dressing of the meat taking the carcass downward until it reaches the ground floor cooled and ready for shipment.

As to Looking One in the Eye.

There is an old theory that a man is not to be trusted who will not look one straight in the eye. Yet this power of habit depends far more upon the amount of self esteem or natural courage which one possesses than upon guilt or innocence. A rascal may be either shamefaced or brazen. One of the latter sort could look the recording angel in the face without the quiver of an eyelash while committing the most atrocious crime.—[Harper's Bazar.

"How did you get along with Miss Green?" "Why, I said nothing and she talked; at the end of the conversation she announced that we were—engaged."—[Fliegende Blatter.

ART AND ARTISTS.

At New York both the organizations of artists give more attention than usual to sculpture in their spring exhibitions.

The Committee on Casts of the Metropolitan Museum of New York is engaged in raising $100,000 in order to complete the gallery of sculpture.

The authentic ancient portrait of Columbus, copied from a miniature, and now on exhibition in London, will go to the Chicago World's Fair.

Mrs. Hopkins Searle, of Great Barrington, is to give the town of Methuen a statue of Washington. The figure is to be colossal and will be executed by the veteran sculptor, Thomas Ball.

In Cesar Maironi, who has recently died at Bergamo, Italy loses the oldest of her painters. He was a meritorious painter of pictures and frescoes, though his works are little known outside of his own country.

At a recent art sale in Florence the so-called throne of Giuliano de Medici (a sort of sofa, with a high back supported by columns), carved by Baccio d'Agnolo in the sixteenth century, was sold to an Englishman for $7,000.

Alma Tadema's popularity is now at its height and London picture buyers are paying liberally for any of his productions. Three of his Italian pieces were in the Santurce collection, and at the recent sale realized $37,250.

In Richmond, Va., the sculptor, Valentine, author of the recumbent figure of General Robert E. Lee at Lexington, Va., has finished a model of the statue to be erected in the same town to General "Stonewall" Jackson of the Confederacy.

In Columbus, Ohio, the German-Americans have erected a colossal bronze statue of the poet Schiller, and for Fairmount Park, Philadelphia, the Germans have secured a bronze statue of Goethe, modeled by Henry Mauger. It is cast in Philadelphia, is 9 feet in height, and cost $12,000.

One of the noteworthy contributions to the Champs Elysees Salon in Paris this season is by Miss Klumpke, of California, who has made great progress in recent years. It is from Zola's novel of "The Dream," and represents Angele sitting at a bay window in a flood of bright sunshine, and lost in thought. The strength of current American art is not shown so well as it should be in the present Salon, but the coming exhibition of American art only will remedy that.—[Boston Journal.

An art event of unique interest will occur shortly in Brooklyn, when J. S. T. Stranahan, its first citizen, will unveil his own monument in Prospect Park. This is a privilege and honor combined rarely vouchsafed to a man, however high he may stand in the estimation of his community. The well rounded career of the sturdy Brooklyn octogenarian, and the testimony to it in bronze while he is still alive, make the occasion and the man important features of proper municipal pride. The statue is by Frederick McMonnis, and has been highly commended by the favored few that have viewed its proportions.—[Philadelphia Ledger.

EDUCATIONAL.

Swiss teachers average $400 a year.

England has a Woman's Agricultural School.

Memphis will start a trade school for colored people.

Agricultural text books are used in the common schools of Ontario, Canada.

America has 441 educational institutions with the right to confer degrees.

The Earl of Derby succeeds Lord Granville as chancellor of London University.

The Public School Savings Bank in Warren, Pa., received deposits from the pupils amounting to $320.03 in two weeks after its opening.

It is an interesting fact that of the 365 colleges of the United States, 204 are coeducational. Women at present constitute 55 per cent of the under graduates in this country.

Texas has, according to the census, 411,000 children enrolled in the common schools. It is a pretty good record for Texas. It may also be said Texas is the richest State of the Union in its school fund in sight.

One-third of the students in Europe, it is said, die prematurely from the effects of bad habits acquired at college, one-third die prematurely from the effects of close confinement at their studies, and the other third govern Europe.

The Chautauqua Schools of Sacred Literature anticipate some extraordinary features this year, and it is confidently affirmed that these departments will prove to be the crowning success of Chautauqua work during the present season.

Prizes for bread making are popular this year at young ladies' seminaries. The girls say it is not hard to win them; a girl who can learn to translate the "Erlking" and the fable of the raven and the cheese can learn to make a loaf of bread in half the time.

Miss Jean Gordon, of Cincinnati, upon whom will be conferred the degree of Ph. G. at the Philadelphia College of Pharmacy, has earned the highest average ever attained by any woman graduate from that institution. Out of the 184 graduates in the class of this year only six obtained the highest rating of "distinguished." Miss Gordon was one of the six. She was the only woman in her class, and had to contend with bright young men.

Within a few years the public school system of New York city, which is now one of the largest systems in the world, is likely, according to School, to exceed greatly its present size. With a population of 1,700,000, there are now more than 300 school departments in the city, 4,200 teachers, an average attendance of 160,000 pupils daily, and a total attendance of 300,000. The salaries of teachers, janitors, and employees now aggregate over $3,000,000, and the expenditures for the schools yearly exceed, considerably, $4,000,000. Another 10 years will add, by the natural growth of the city, half a million to its population, and not less than 25 per cent to the number of school buildings, to the attendance, the teachers, and the expenditures.

BUSINESS AND INDUSTRIAL.

New York has 70,000 sweaters.

Iowa leads in corn production.

New York has 600 women compositors.

The steamship Majestic cost $2,000,000.

New York has an Italian Stonemason's Union.

American railroads employ 3,000,000 persons.

A New York dress has 4,000,000 stitches.

A substitute for platinum is announced.

There are 29,076 locomotives in the United States.

Southern iron production increases wonderfully.

Philadelphia has about 1,500 lawyers, Pittsburg but 600.

St. Paul is to have a bureau of legal advice for workingmen.

At least £144,000,000 worth of British property is always on the sea.

Chicago boasts of 1,463 hotels, with a total capacity for 135,000 guests.

On an average the mine workers in the vicinity of Unionville, Pa., earn 93 cents per day.

A beet sugar factory to cost $550,000 is to be built at Marshalltown, Iowa, by Easterners and Californians.

London has 200,000 factory girls, the majority of whom are only able to make a "bob" a day—$1.50 a week.

Painters in New Orleans get 22½ cents an hour, in Kansas City 51 cents, in Memphis 48 cents, and in New York 52 cents.

The Factory Inspection Committee of the Woman's State Alliance of Illinois has found 106 shirt factories in Chicago that are working children who are under legal age, at $1 per week, the hours being 10 to 12 per day.

Brickmasons are paid 21 cents an hour in Atlanta, but in St. Louis they are paid 49 cents. In Lexington, Va., a carpenter gets 18 cents an hour, in New York 39 cents. In Vicksburg a plumber receives 22½ cents an hour, in Chicago 40 cents.

At the recent picnic of the New York butchers and drovers Albert Manheimer, champion of the world, dressed a bullock against time. Manheimer dressed the animal in the almost incredible time of 3 minutes 41½ seconds, thus breaking the best previous record of 4 minutes 27 seconds, held by Mullens, of Chicago.

An association with £2,000,000 capital, and with Sir Charles Tupper at its head, has been organized in London for the purchase of gas, water, and other works in this country and Canada. Cities and towns that want to have their water and gas supplied by an English syndicate will now have an opportunity quite English.

The entire production of the precious, semi-precious stones, and ornamental minerals in the United States during the year 1889 was $188,817. Of this amount $53,175 was agatized and jasperized wood, $23,675 turquois stones, and $14,000 quartz. Diamonds to the value of $1,006,716 were cut during the year in the lapidary works in New York and Massachussetts.

The highest wages paid to the trades that are the most thoroughly organized and governed by unions are in the six following cities: New York, Brooklyn, Chicago, St. Louis, Galveston, and San Francisco. St. Louis pays the highest price to masons, New York to carpenters, San Francisco to painters, Chicago to plumbers, Santa Fe to roofers, and Galveston to laborers, where the colored laborer abounds in all his glory.

RELIGIOUS NOTES.

The mission for lepers in India has established a new center of their own in Neyoor, Travancore, South India.

The mission house of the Baptist mission at Irebu, on the Congo, has been destroyed by fire, entailing a loss of over $1,000.

The Salvation Army has 9,349 regular officers, 13,000 voluntary officers, 30 training homes, with 400 cadets and 2,064 corps.

Asia, the cradle of the human race, has 102 Young Men's Christian Associations. "Darkest Africa" has 13, and Oceanica, comprising the island of the sea, has 16.

Tarsus, the place toward which Jonah was traveling when he had that unfortunate encounter with the whale, has a flourishing Y. M. C. A., and Jerusalem also has a branch of this great organization.

In Switzerland a new law has just gone into effect, which provides that employees of railways, steamboat companies, and other agencies of transport chartered by the government or carried on under its directions, shall have 52 days of rest in the year, of which at least 17 shall coincide with Sunday. The same law forbids freight traffic on Sunday.

There has been little mission work accomplished in Patagonia, but the Roman Catholics have a mission center at Viedma, in the southern part of the country. They have 12 colleges with 5,000 students, and an industrial school with 30 apprentices of carpenters, blacksmiths, bootmakers, tinkers, and tailors. They have also a dispensary and the only hospital in the territory.

The mission of the Methodist Episcopal Church in the state of Rio Grande do Sul, Brazil, is finding special opportunities for work among the immigrants that come pouring in in hundreds. While the work at the capital is conducted in Portuguese, that of the colonies is in Italian and is under the care of a native of Italy. In two of these colonies there are organized churches, which have secured ground, cut timber, and obtained material for chapels.

The trials of the Sims-Edison electric torpedo in the port of Havre excited a great deal of admiration. The torpedo performed the most intricate evolutions at a high rate of speed, and showed itself to be directly under control from the shore operator.

ART AND ARTISTS.

William Henry Howe, the American cattle painter, has at the Paris Salon this year two masterly scenes from animal life: "A Milking Scene in Holland" and "A Norman Bull."

Henry Bacon, the Boston artist, whose home is now in Paris, represents the American committee through which the French capital is to receive a bronze copy of Houdin's statue of Washington at Richmond, Va.

Viima Parlaghy is at present probably the most noted portrait painter in Germany. She has received an order for a life sized portrait of the empress, though she has excelled so far only in the portraits of men.

Albert Bierstadt is off for the purpose of making studies for the pictures of "The Landing of Columbus," on which he has been engaged for some time, and which he intends to finish before the opening of the Columbian Exposition. His studies of costumes and armor will take him to Spain and Portugal.

Countess Edla, the Boston actress who became the morganatic wife of the late Dom Ferrando of Portugal, has given orders for the early sale by public auction of her husband's marvelous collection of paintings, statuary, and art objects. Dom Fernando was king consort of Portugal and grandfather of the present monarch.

The Nestor of Roman artists is the painter Francesco Podesti, who lately celebrated his 90th birthday. On this occasion he received letters of congratulation from all the academies of art in Italy, from the king, and from the mayor of Rome. Podesti 50 years ago received a decoration from Charles Albert, the grandfather of king Humbert.

A Good Chance.

The attention of all unmarried ladies is called to the advertisement elsewhere in this paper for a "good wife wanted." The advertiser is a gentleman in whom confidence can be placed and, furthermore, he means business, providing the right party is heard from. Now is your chance, girls, to get a good husband, if you want one.

HOOD'S
COMPOUND EXTRACT
SARSAPARILLA
TRADE MARK

The importance of purifying the blood cannot be overestimated, for without pure blood you cannot enjoy good health.

At this season nearly every one needs a good medicine to purify, vitalize, and enrich the blood, and we ask you to try Hood's Sarsaparilla. It strengthens and builds up the system, creates an appetite, and tones the digestion, while it eradicates disease. The peculiar combination, proportion, and preparation of the vegetable remedies used give to Hood's Sarsaparilla peculiar curative powers. No other medicine has such a record of wonderful cures. If you have made up your mind to buy Hood's Sarsaparilla do not be induced to take any other instead. It is a Peculiar Medicine, and is worthy your confidence.

What is

CASTORIA

Castoria is Dr. Samuel Pitcher's prescription for Infants and Children. It contains neither Opium, Morphine nor other Narcotic substance. It is a harmless substitute for Paregoric, Drops, Soothing Syrups, and Castor Oil. It is Pleasant. Its guarantee is thirty years' use by Millions of Mothers. Castoria destroys Worms and allays feverishness. Castoria prevents vomiting Sour Curd, cures Diarrhœa and Wind Colic. Castoria relieves teething troubles, cures constipation and flatulency. Castoria assimilates the food, regulates the stomach and bowels, giving healthy and natural sleep. Castoria is the Children's Panacea—the Mother's Friend.

Castoria.

"Castoria is an excellent medicine for children. Mothers have repeatedly told me of its good effect upon their children."

DR. G. C. OSGOOD,
Lowell, Mass.

"Castoria is the best remedy for children of which I am acquainted. I hope the day is not far distant when mothers will consider the real interest of their children, and use Castoria instead of the various quack nostrums which are destroying their loved ones, by forcing opium, morphine, soothing syrup and other hurtful agents down their throats, thereby sending them to premature graves."

DR. J. F. KINCHELOE,
Conway, Ark.

Castoria.

"Castoria is so well adapted to children that I recommend it as superior to any prescription known to me."

H. A. ARCHER, M. D.,
111 So. Oxford St., Brooklyn, N. Y.

"Our physicians in the children's department have spoken highly of their experience in their outside practice with Castoria, and although we only have among our medical supplies what is known as regular products, yet we are free to confess that the merits of Castoria has won us to look with favor upon it."

IS A MAXIM THAT APPLIES WITH PECULIAR FORCE TO SCHOOLS.

WILLIAMS & ROGERS' ROCHESTER BUSINESS UNIVERSITY

Stands at the head of the list of commercial schools in its character as an educational force, as a medium for supplying the business men of the country with trained and capable assistants, as a means of placing ambitious young men and women on the road to success, and in the extent, elegance and cost of its equipment. THOROUGH COMMERCIAL, SHORTHAND AND PRACTICAL ENGLISH COURSES. The Twenty-seventh Annual Catalogue will be mailed to any address.

—Watermelons are becoming plentier and lower in price.

—Some of Saturday's decorations have not yet been removed.

—A very nice rain on Tuesday but bad weather for harvesting.

—It wont be many weeks until we will be thinking of the Autumn days.

—Next Sunday will be a big day in Williamsport, according to all accounts.

—The fourth of July rush is over, and now there is very little travel on the various railroads.

—Mr. Ed. C. Rowe and family are now stopping at the Brockerhoff House. Their stay there will be indefinite.

—Some of the state papers want to get up a pretty girl contest. If Bellefonte enters the race it would surely win the prize.

—On July 4th, in Lock Haven, the Patriotic Order of Sons of America voted to hold their annual "blow-out" in Bellefonte next Fourth.

—This is about the season of the year when good little boys commence attending about seven Sunday schools at once. The picnic season has much to do with it, you know.

—It is indisputable that more cases of dyspepsia, indigestion, weak stomach, bilious and gastric derangement are cured by Humphreys' Specific No. Ten than by all other remedies put together.

—A piano-organ attracted considerable attention on the streets of Bellefonte on Tuesday night. The instrument was operated with a crank and the music played, though familiar tunes, was of an exceptionally good quality.

For Over Fifty YearS.

It has been said that skilful advertising will accomplish wonders, and this is partly true, for it is no uncommon thing to see various nostrums achieve a brief notoriety in this way. But they do not outlast the notices that herald them. Thus it is that the mercurial and potash remedies are constantly appearing before the public in new disguises. Advertising however, will not account for the popularity that S. S. S. has enjoyed for fifty years, nor for the fact that it has become a household remdey; nor will advertising account for the thousands of testimonials that the people have given in its behalf. Only the most substantial merit account for the estimation in which this wonderful medicine is held.

To Our Subscribers.

The SPECIAL ANNOUNCEMENT which appeared in our columns some time since, announcing a special arrangement with Dr. B. J. Kendall Co., of Enosburg Falls, Vt., publishers of "A Treatise on the Horse and his Diseases," whereby our subscribers were enabled to obtain a copy of that valuable work free by sending their address to B. J. Kendall Co, (and enclosing a two-cent stamp for mailing same) is renewed for a limited period. We trust all will avail themselves of the opportunity of obtaining this valuable work. To every lover of the Horse it is indispensable, as it treats in a simple manner all the diseases which afflict this noble animal. Its phenomenal sale throughout the United States and Canada, make it standard authority. Mention this paper when sending for 'Treatise."

Beware of Ointment for Catarrh that contains Mercury,

As mercury will surely destroy the sense of smell and completely derang the whole system when entering it through the mucous surface. Such articles should never be used exept on prescriptions from reputable physicians, as the damage they will do is ten fold to the good you can possibly derive from them. Haill's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J Cheney & Co., Toledo, O., contains no mercury, and is taken internally and act directly upon the blood and mucous surface of the system. In buying Haill's Catarrh Cure be sure you get the genuine. It is taken internally, and made in Toledo, Ohio, by F. J. Cheney & Co.

☞ Sold by Druggists, price 75c. per bottle.

Teachers' Convention.

BEDFORD, July 6.—Pedagogues and friends of educational work are arriving in town on every train to attend the State Teachers' association, which meets here to-morrow morning for a three days' session. The indications are that this will be the most successful convention the association has ever held. The exhibits already here make a grand display of the work done in the common schools, academies and colleges of the State.

The exhibits from the State College are the finest on exhibition along the line of industrial work, and show the varied work of the engineering departments of State institutions.

The following schools have exhibits in place: Wilkesbarre, Hazleton, Nanticoke, Towanda, Pittston, Kingston, Millersville, Huntingdon, Greensburg, Allegheny, Pittsburg, Scranton and Philadelphia. More are in transit.

Changes of Climate.

Kill more people than is generally known. Particularly is this the case in instances where the constitution is delicate, and among our imigrant population seeking new homes in those portions of the West, and where malaria and typhoid fevers prevail at certain seasons of the year, The best preparative for a change of climate, or of diet and water which that change necessitates, is Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, which not only fortifies the system against malaria, a variable temperature, damp, and the deblitating effects of tropical heat, but is also the leading remedy for constipation, dyspepsia, liver complaiht, bodily troubles specially apt to attack emigrants and visitors to regions near the equator, mariners and tourists. Whether used as a safeguard by sea voyagers, travelers by land, miners, or of agriculturists in newly populated districts, this fine specific has elicited the most favorable testimony.

John have you seen that woman lately? John, in astonishment, What woman? That woman picking grapes for Speer's Wines. Just see her in another column and read about it; the wines are found by chemists to be absolutely pure and equal to the best in the world. The Board of Health in Large Cities and leading Hospitals have adopted their use where wines are needed.

Take No Chances.

During the present heated term, surrounded by impure water and subject at any moment to epidemics, why risk your health, your happiness and probably your life, when a simple, pleasant and most effective preventative to human affliction is at your command. Physicians everywhere, and nurses will promptly assure you of the advantage of good pure liquor, such as Klein's "Silver Age" or "Duquesne" pure ryes. Goods that are without a compeer in the market, and the boast and admiration of everyone testing them. Ask your druggist or dealer for them. The "Silver Age" sells for $1.50 per full quart, and "Duquesne" for $1.25. If they do not keep it, send to the reliable wholesale liquor house of Max Klein, 82 Federal street, Allegheny. You will find pure Guckenheimer, Finch, Overholt and Gibson ryes, either at $1.00 per quart or six bottles for $5.00.

The Great Yale-Harvard Race.

A double-page is devoted to pictures of the great Yale-Harvard race on the Thames, in Frank Leslie's Illustrated Newspaper this week. The fascinating story of the Leslie Alaska Expedition and its adventure is continued. A page is devoted to interesting foreign picture, and there is also a page of view in Havana. The last is accompanied by a startling article by Frank A. Burr, a well known journalist, on "The Destiny of Cuba—Annexation." A Kansas belle, a full page view of an ocean steamer concert, and many other pictures make up the number. Printed in English and German. Price, ten cents, Get it of your news dealers, or send $1 to 110 Fifth Avenue New York, for three month's trial subscription.

4 Mothers, 10 Children.

These children are being brought up on Castoria. Read what the mothers say about Castoria. There is no opium, morphine or other narcotic substance in Castoria, The formula is printed on the wrapper of every bottle. It is perfectly harmless, pleasant to take and positively effective. Physicians prescribe Castoria, mothers give Castoria, and children cry for Castoria. It gives the child health and the mother rest.

"I certify that little Robbie Hale, of 466 Portland Avenue, St. Paul, was a thin, crying baby from his birth until he was given Castoria. He began to improve from the first week's trial. Has taken 13 bottles; is perfectly well; weighed 30 pounds the day he was 7 months old, and when this picture was taken. Robbie's changed condition has caused many mothers to use Castoria. It is the best thing for babies I have ever known."

THE WALLED IN ROOM.

I opened my eyes and looked around me. A man was leaning over my bed; near the man stood a woman with a bonnet with great white wings on the sides, holding in her hand a moist compress. The room was plain and neat, with clean white walls. On a table, covered with a great napkin of yellow linen, I noted a number of strange objects—rows of little vials, and a brown earthen jar filled with bits of ice. Through the muslin curtains, which bellied out from the windows in the balmy air, I could see a patch of blue sky and the tops of green trees bending lightly in the breeze. Where was I? It seemed like a long dream which I had had; my head felt empty, my limbs ached, and I could not think.

The man gently lifted my head, and gave me a few drops of some liquid, which I swallowed with avidity.

"Well, Mr. Furniss," he said, "how do you feel now?"

"Eh, what?" I cried. "Where am I?"

"You are in my house, my dear sir, and we shall take good care of you. Now," he added, replacing my head on the pillow, "be quiet and go to sleep."

I gazed at him for a long time, and all at once I recognized Dr. Bertram, the celebrated specialist in insanity. A shudder passed through my frame. Why was I in Dr. Bertram's hospital instead of my own home near Phœnix Park, with my books, my herbs, and my microscopes around me? His hospital was for mad people!—and that sister of charity, those vials, that bowl of ice—my God, I must be mad! But why? How?

"How long have I been here?" I asked after a time.

"For four weeks, Mr. Furniss. But you must be quiet and sleep. Now do not try to talk."

For a month! Was it possible? What had happened? But even as I asked myself these questions little by little I went off to sleep, and I saw, in a billowy meadow, a road covered with blood and bordered on either side with monstrous microscopes shaped like trees, a road on which two little girls played at pitch and catch with a severed head, while Dr. Bertram, comically bonneted with a religious cap, rode astride of a dead body, which reared and pranced and kicked till he could scarcely keep his seat.

The next morning I was better, and day by day I improved, though that horrible nightmare came to me each night. But it grew less and less distinct, and after a few weeks it almost ceased to trouble me.

One evening the doctor, whom I had not seen during the day, seated himself near my bed.

"Well," said he, feeling my pulse, "you are doing famously. I'll have you out, as good as new, in a few days. But you have had a close shave. It has been one of the prettiest cases of cerebral congestion I ever handled—a beautiful case. Why, it is a wonder you are alive now. Tell me, how is your memory; can you remember what happened before you were brought here?"

"I—I don't know; I can not think. I have passed through something fearful. What it is I can not say. From the faint glimmer of recollection that comes to me I have the sensation of having been dead—murdered! Oh, it is frightful! My brain is weak yet. Then, the child, a pretty golden haired child—rolling on the floor."

"Come, come, this will never do," said the doctor. "You can tell me all about it in the morn——"

"No, now, doctor," I cried. "It is coming back to me. Yes, I have it now."

Here is an exact transcript of my recital as I told it to Dr. Bertram and later to the magistrate.

You know my passion for natural history. Well, scarcely a week passes that I do not go into the country botanizing. That day I went to Glacnevin, where, as you may know, the marshy meadows are rich in curious plants, infusoria, and diatoms. I was returning, and was almost in Dublin with my box full of rare specimens, on which I expected to make a report that would astonish the Botanical Society, when I saw a little girl, certainly not over 5 or 6 years old, who was all alone, crying as if her little heart would break. I approached her, but at sight of me she redoubled her cries. I could see that the little one was lost, and that she did not know where to go, so I spoke to her kindly, and, by dint of promising her unlimited bonbons, got her to tell me that her name was Lizzie, and that she lived in Beresford place in Lower Abbey street.

I took her hand, and we soon started off, talking together like old friends. She was a beautiful child, fresh and rosy, with great candid eyes and fair hair, which was cut short over her eyes and fell in golden ringlets about her shoulders. She trotted bravely along, her soft little hand in mine. As we walked she told me remarkable tales, in which figured a big, black horse, a little knife, a doll, and a number of people I did not know.

Lizzie was afraid she would be scolded when she arrived home, but she was not, and I—I was received with transports by her mother, who was half distracted. Never was gratitude expressed so heartily and pleasantly. Who was I, where did I live, how did I happen to find her, and a thousand like questions were showered upon me.

"Oh, Mr. Furniss," said the mother, "you are the saviour of my child. How can we express our gratitude? We are not rich, but such a debt can not be paid in gold. How happy my husband will be to repeat my thanks to you. He is still at his office, but—will you do a great kindness, will you honor our humble board to-morrow? I shall have a savant here like yourself, and you two will enjoy each other's company, I am sure. And my husband will be so happy to have you."

I thanked her for the invitation and promised to be on hand.

At the appointed hour I was shown into their modest parlor, and you may be sure the husband's gratitude was no less warmly expressed than the wife's. And little Lizzie threw her arms around my neck and showered on me the innocent caresses of a happy child. I seemed, indeed, to be one of the family.

The dinner was a merry one, the savant seemed to be an interesting man—in brief, I passed an excellent evening.

The air had been heavy the whole day and in the evening a storm came on. Thunder claps succeeded one another without interruption and the rain fell in torrents. Whether it was the effect of the storm, of the suffocating heat, or of the wine I had drank, I felt a strange melancholy—I could not breathe comfortably.

I was about to set out for home, however, for it was late and my house was at some distance; but they insisted that I should stay. It would be foolish to expose myself to such a tempest, when I was not feeling well; the mother begged me with such a good grace that I felt forced to remain and pass the night in that hospitable house.

They ceremoniously conducted me to my room, and there wished me good night. I even remember that little Lizzie having fallen asleep in her father's arms, I kissed her little cheek, paled by sleep, and her dimpled little arms.

Left alone, I began to undress slowly and wander about the room, as one always does when one sleeps in a strange place. I felt as if I should smother in the close atmosphere of the room. Before getting into bed I wanted to inhale a little of the outside air, and in spite of the roaring of the storm I tried to open the window. It was a false one.

"Well, well!" I exclaimed, a little surprised.

I thought I would remove the chimney screen; it was a false chimney. I rushed to the door—it was locked. Fear seized me, and, holding my breath, I listened. The house was quiet, all seemed to be asleep. Then I inspected the room carefully, straining my ears for the least sound. On the floor, near the bed, I noticed spots; they were blood—dried and blackened blood! I shuddered, and a cold sweat stood out on my forehead.

Blood! Why should there be blood there? And I saw that a whole sea of blood must have been spilt there, for a great space around the hard wooden floor had been freshly scrubbed and scraped. All at once I cried out. Under the bed I had seen a man stretched out, motionless as an overturned statue. With trembling hands I touched the man. He did not move. With trembling hands I seized the man by the feet and drew him forth—he was dead. His neck had been cleanly cut, as with one stroke of the razor, and the head held to the trunk only by a slender ligament.

I thought I should go mad. But something must be done—the assassin might come at any moment. I raised the body to place it on the bed. I made a false step, and the head turned over, swung to and fro for a moment like a pendulum, and then, detached from the trunk, fell on the floor with a dull sound.

With great difficulty I introduced the decapitated trunk between the sheets. I picked up the head and placed it on the pillow, like that of a sleeping man, and, having blown out the candle, I slipped under the bed.

I did all this mechanically, without thought of defense or safety; it was instinct that prompted me, not intelligence or reflection. My teeth chattered; my hands were wet with a thick moisture. I felt as if I had gone to bed in a charnel house.

I remained there in that awful fear for minutes, hours, months, years, centuries—I do not know how long. I lost all idea of time and place. All was silent. From without the noise of the storm and the whistling of the wind came to me softened and sad, like moans.

I could not picture to myself the assassin who was coming—who was there, perhaps. In that state of horror I could see only little Lizzie, fair, rosy, and frank, with her doll and her great hat; I could see her sleeping in her father's arms; now and then she lightly raised her eyelids and disclosed her eyes, which seemed to me to be bold, implacable, cruel, murderous.

The door opened, but as softly as the scratching of a mouse. I bit my lips till the blood came to keep from crying out. Now a man stepped in with gliding tread, with infinite precautions to avoid touching the furniture. It seemed to me as if I could see the cruel, clutching fingers gliding over my clothes, searching my pockets. Then the steps came nearer—seemed to graze me. I felt that the man was bending over the bed, that he struck one fierce blow. Then I knew nothing more.

When I recovered consciousness the room had become silent again. But fright held me nailed to the spot. At length I decided to escape—with what caution you may imagine. On tiptoe I gained the door, which had not been closed. Not a sound, not a breath. Feeling my way, I passed into the hall. I waited to see a head thrust suddenly from out the shadows, a knife gleam in the dark. But no—the brute, glutted with crime, slept without remorse. I descended the stairs, drew the bolt of the door, and half fainting, with the blood frozen in my veins, I fell into the gutter of the deserted street.

Dr. Bertram had listened to my recital with the deepest interest.

"And there I found you, Mr. Furniss—and in what a state! Could you recognize the house?"

"Yes," I replied; but to what end?"

"Well, let me cure you, and then we will go together to the house of these assassins.

Eight days later the doctor and I stood in Lower Abbey street. I recognized the terrible house. All the blinds were drawn. In front of the door a placard was placed, bearing the words: "To Let."

I inquired of the former residents from a neighbor.

"They have been gone a month and more," she replied. "It's a great pity, for they were very nice people."

"Mercy me!" said Miss Passee; "I sincerely hope they will not pass the law making a day of eight hours." "Why not?" "Just think how rapidly we shall age! Just three times as fast."—[Harper's Bazar."

RAIN MADE TO ORDER.

THE MARVELOUS TALE OF A MODERN MUNCHAUSEN.

Astounding Performances of Magicians in West Africa—A Man Floats in Air—A Most Impressive Feat—The Priests of Baal.

In a foreign publication there is a brief paper upon "West African Magic," the author of which, professing to write in all seriousness, gravely declares that the rainmakers of Africa really do make rain!

But he is not content with argument. He supports his contention by the following marvelous story of what he declares he himself witnessed on the west coast of Africa:

I remember well my first experience of these wizards. For weeks and weeks there had been no rain, although it was the rainy season. The mealies were all dying for want of water; the cattle were being slaughtered in all directions: women and children had died by scores, and the fighting men were beginning to do the same, being themselves scarcely more than skeletons. Day after day the sun glared down on the parched earth, without one intervening cloud, like a globe of glowing copper, and all nature languished in that awful furnace.

Suddenly the king ordered the great war drum to be beaten, and the warriors all gathered hurriedly. He announced the arrival of two celebrated rainmakers, who would forthwith proceed to relieve the prevailing distress. The elder of the two was a stunted, bow legged little man, with wool which would have been white had it not been messed up with grease, filth, and feathers. The second was rather a fine specimen of the Soosoo race, but with a very sinister expression.

A large ring being formed by the squatting negroes, who came—for some unknown reason—all armed to the teeth, the king being in the center, and the rainmakers in front of him, they commenced their incantations. The zenith and the horizon were eagerly examined from time to time, but not a vestige of a cloud appeared. Presently the elder man rolled on the ground in convulsions, apparently epileptic, and his comrade started to his feet pointing with both hands to the copper colored sky.

All eyes followed his gesture, and looked at the spot to which his hands pointed, but nothing was visible. Motionless as a stone statue he stood with gaze riveted on the sky. In about the space of a minute a darker shade was observable in the copper tint, in another minute it grew darker and darker, and in a few more seconds developed into a black cloud which soon overspread the heavens.

In a moment a vivid flash was seen, and the deluge that fell from that cloud, which had now spread completely overhead, was something to be remembered. For two days and nights that torrent poured down and seemed as if it would wash everything out of the ground.

After the king had dismissed the rainmakers, and they had deposited the cattle and presents under guard, I entered the hut in which they were lodged and spent the night with them, discussing the magical art.

The hut was about 14 feet in diameter, strongly built of posts driven firmly into the ground and having a strong thatched conical roof. I eventually persuaded them to give me one or two examples of their skill. They began singing, or rather crooning, a long invocation, after a few minutes of which the younger man appeared to rise in the air about three feet from the ground and remain there unsuspended and floating about.

There was a brilliant light in the hut from a large fire in the center, so that the smallest detail could be distinctly observed. I got up and went to feel the man in the air, and there was no doubt about his levitation. He then floated close to the wall and passed through it to the outside.

When I reentered the hut there was only the old man present. I examined the logs carefully, but there was no aperture whatever. The old man continued his chant, and in another moment his comrade reappeared floating in the air. He sat down on the ground, and I saw his black skin glistening with rain, and the few rags he wore were as wet as if he had been dipped in a river.

The next feat was performed by the old man, and consisted in several instantaneous disappearances and reappearances. The curious point about this was that the old man also was dripping wet.

A most impressive feat, which they on a subsequent occasion performed was the old custom of the priests of Baal.

Commencing a lugubrious chant, they slowly began circling around the fire (which said fire always is an essential part of the proceedings), keeping a certain amount of rhythm in both their movements and cadences. Presently the movement grew faster and faster, till they whirled round like dancing dervishes. There were two distinct movements; all the time during which they were gyrating round the circle they were rapidly spinning on their own axes.

With the rapidity of their evolutions their voices were raised higher and higher until the din was terrific. Then by a simultaneous movement each began slashing his naked body on arms, chest, and thigh until they were streaming with blood and covered with deep gashes. Then the old man stopped his erratic course, and, sitting down on the ground, narrowly watched the younger one with apparent solicitude. The young man continued his frantic exertions until exhausted nature could bear no more, and he fell panting and helpless on the ground.

The old man took both the knives, and anointed the blades with some evil smelling grease from a calabash, and then stroked the young man's body all over with the blade which had done the injuries, and finished the operation by rubbing him vigorously with the palms of the hands smeared with the unguent.

In a few minutes' time the young man arose, and there was not the slightest trace of wound or scar in his ebony skin. He then performed the same good office on the old man with the same effect. Within ten minutes afterward they were both laid on their mats in a sweet and quiet sleep.

THE TORNADO SEASON.

Lieutenant Finley Gives the Result of His Observations to the People.

During the last 13 years the Weather Bureau at Washington has paid particular attention to cyclones and tornadoes, with a view to ascertaining their nature, force, direction, and the best means of escaping from them.

Lieutenant Finley, of the United States Army, has been for many years in charge of this subject, and has elicited several facts important for all people to know and remember, among them the following:

1. Tornadoes occur in the United States during every month of the year, but are most frequent in April, May, June, and July, when the air nearest the earth may be exceedingly hot while the upper air is cold. They may and do occur in every part of the country, but are more common in the great central plain than elsewhere; and are least frequent—indeed they are extremely uncommon—in the mountainous regions.

2. Tornadoes almost always occur in the afternoon, between half past 3 and 5 o'clock.

3. The average number of these storms in the United States is 146 a year.

4. The signs of an approaching tornado are similar to those which indicate a coming thunder storm, namely, a low and falling barometer, an intense, oppressive heat, an absence of wind, and an accumulation of threatening clouds.

5. The clouds which indicate a tornado gather in the west or southwest, and move toward the east or northeast. If there is danger in them, there is soon observed a violent commotion in the mass of black clouds, a rushing toward the center, while at the point where the observer stands the air is hot and almost motionless. Soon there is heard a great roaring noise, and then is seen the onward rush of the funnel shaped cloud.

6. The line of safety at such a moment is toward the northwest. If the observer faces the storm, let him turn directly to the right, and make the best time he can. The strength of the tornado is near its southern edge. The thing to do is to get out of its path, or to seek some refuge below the surface of the ground.

7. Lieutenant Finley remarks that sufficient time is usually afforded for escape if people will keep cool and make no false steps.

If they run to the east they must soon be overtaken by a tornado moving from 50 to 100 miles an hour. If they run into the woods they greatly increase their danger. If within a house or cellar, they should avoid the easterly side, because if the building is destroyed it is that side which receives the mass of crushing material.

8. In a wooden house the cellar is the safest place; in a house of brick or stone the cellar is the most dangerous. The best preparation in a country much devastated by tornadoes is to make an excavation in the west side of the cellar, and make it sufficiently large to provide room for every member of the family. But even this is not safe unless the overhanging earth is supported by heavy timbers and well constructed masonry.

9. It is well to bear in mind that no building whatever can be made strong enough to resist the tornado at the point where its force is greatest; nor is it possible to change the course of a tornado by discharging cannon balls into it, nor by exploding dynamite in any quantity. Still less can the fatal cloud be dispersed by the use of any electrical contrivance.

Lieutenant Finley's advice to families living in the Southwest, where these disturbances oftenest occur, is to make a tornado cave for themselves, and effect a special tornado insurance upon their buildings.

One of Nat Goodwin's Jokes.

Nat Goodwin is not only funny on the stage, but he is very funny in private life. He is a jokist, as Artemus Ward would say. Here is one of his practical jokes. A party of friends went over to Philadelphia from New York to see him act, and Nat got a dinner out of them in this way: The talk had been led by Mr. Goodwin imperceptibly to conjuring tricks with cards. Nat said he could do something in that line himself, and calling a waiter asked him to bring a new pack of cards, which the waiter did. "Now," said Nat Goodwin, "I am not like the ordinary conjurers; I will not touch the cards at all. Just open the pack and shuffle them." One of the men did so.

"You," he said to another, "pick out a card and show your friend what it is."

This was also done.

"Put the card in the middle of the pack," said Goodwin, "and shuffle." This being accomplished, Nat Goodwin said to one of the men: "What day of the month were you born on?"

"The 16th," said the man.

"Very well," said Goodwin, "just take 15 cards off that pack and you'll find the sixteenth card the one you picked out."

"Oh, impossible," replied the crowd.

"Very well, then," said Nat, "I will bet you a dinner on it."

So the dinner was bet and the cards were picked off the pile, and sure enough the ace of spades came up, which every one declared was the card that had been picked out.

The party was literally amazed at this trick of conjuring, because Nat Goodwin had not touched the cards during the whole time, and as the man who was to pay for the dinner was the one who said he was born on the sixteenth of the month, of course there was no collusion with him. When asked to explain how it was done, Nat said it was very simple if you gave your mind to conjuring. All he had done was to give the waiter a pack of cards before he came in, which pack was done up as if it were a new set of cards, then turning the back face upward he showed them that every card in the pack was an ace of spades, so, of course, it did not make any difference whether the seventeenth or twenty-seventh card was picked out, it was sure to be the ace of spades.

One of the pleasant things about candor is the ease with which it may be made to fit our neighbors.—[New York Herald.

SCRIBNER'S MAGAZINE.

For the coming year will be noteworthy for a number of special features which the Publishers believe are of very unusual interest, and among them may be mentioned:—

SIR EDWIN ARNOLD

contributes to the December number the first of a series of four Articles upon Japan, its people, its ways, and its thoughts. Mr. Robert Blum, who was commissioned to go to Japan for Scribner's Magazine, has prepared a very remarkable series of drawings to illustrate Sir Edwin's papers. Articles upon the recent Japanese Festival will follow, illustrated by Mr Blum.

HENRY M. STANLEY

has prepared for the January number an important article upon "The Pigmies of the Great African Forest." Another contribution in this field will be Mr. J. Scott Keltie's account of the recent African Exhibition held in London. Both papers will be amply illustrated.

THE WRECKER,

a Serial Novel by Robert Louis Stevenson and Lloyd Osborne will run through a large part of the year. Illustrated by Hole. A two-part story by Frank R. Stockton will also appear.

PROF. JAMES BRYCE, M. P.,

author of "The American Commonwealth," will write a series of Four Articles upon India embodying the results of his recent journey and studies on this land of never-dying interest.

OCEAN STEAMSHIPS

will be the subject of an important series somewhat upon the lines of the successful Railroad articles. "Passenger Travel," "The Life of Officers and Men," "Speed and Safety Devises," and "Management," are some of the subjects touched upon and illustrated.

GREAT STREETS OF THE WORLD

is the title of a novel collection of articles on which the author and artist will collaborate to give the characteristics of famous thoroughfares. The first, on Broadway, will be written by Richard Harding Davis and illustrated by Arthur B. Frost. Others will follow on Piccadilly, London; Boulevard, Paris; The Corso, Rome.

The price of Scribner's Magazine admits of adding a subscription to one's other reading at very small cost. Orders should be sent at once. $3.00 a year. 25 cents a number

DO YOU READ
THE COSMOPOLITAN?

THAT BRIGHT, SPARKLING MAGAZINE?

The cheapest illustrated monthly in the world. 25 cents a number; $2 40 per year. Edition for December, 1890, 100,000 copies.

The Cosmopolitan is literally what the New York Times calls it. "At its price, the brightest, most varied and best edited of the magazines." An unusual opportunity for new subscribers, for one year only:

The Cosmopolitan, per year	$2 40
Bellefonte Republican, per year	1 50
Price of the two publications	3 90
We will furnish both for only	3 00

This offer is only to new subscribers to The Cosmopolitan, and only for one year.

"It has more articles in each number that are readable, and fewer uninteresting pages, than any of its contemporaries."—Boston Journal.

The Cosmopolitan furnishes for the first time in magazine literature, a splendidly illustrated periodical at a price hitherto deemed impossible. Try it for a year: It will be a liberal educator to every member of the household. It will make the nights pass pleasantly. It will give you more for the money than you can obtain in any other form. Do you want a first-class magazine, giving annually 1536 pages by the ablest writers, with more than 1300 illustrations, by the cleverest artists—as readable a magazine as money can make—a magazine that makes a specialty of live subjects?

"The marvel is how the publishers can give so much for the money."—Philadelphia Evening Call.

Send $3 to this office, and secure both The Cosmopolitan and the REPUBLICAN.

Speer's Port Grape Wine!
FOUR YEARS OLD.

THIS CELEBRATED WINE is the pure juice of the dead ripe Oporto Grape, raised in Speer's vineyards, and left hanging until they shrink and become partially raisined before gathering. Its invaluable TONIC AND STRENGTHENING PROPERTIES are unsurpassed by any other Wines. Being produced under Mr. Speer's personal supervision, its purity and genuineness are guaranteed by the principal Hospitals and Boards of Health who have examined it. The young of child and the weakest invalids use it to advantage. It is particularly beneficial to the aged and debilitated, and suited to the various ailments that affect the weaker sex.
It is in every respect A WINE TO BE RELIED ON.

Speer's Unfermented Grape Juice.

Speer's Socialite Claret

It is held in high estimation for its richness as a Dry Table Wine, specially suited for dinner use.

KENDALL'S SPAVIN CURE

The Most Successful Remedy ever discovered, as it is certain in its effects and does not blister. Read proof below:

BROOKLYN, Conn., May 5, '90.
DR. B. J. KENDALL CO.:
Sirs:—Last Summer I cured a Curb upon my horse with your celebrated Kendall's Spavin Cure and it was the best job I ever saw done. I have a dozen empty bottles, having used it with perfect success, curing every thing I tried it on. My neighbor had a horse with a very bad Spavin that made him lame. He asked me how to cure it. I recommended Kendall's Spavin Cure. He cured the Spavin in just three weeks.
Yours respectfully,
WOLCOTT WITTER.

COLUMBUS, Ohio, April 4, '90.
DR. B. J. KENDALL CO.:
Dear Sirs:—I have been selling more of Kendall's Spavin Cure and Flint's Condition Powders than ever before. One man said to me, it was the best Powder I ever kept and the best he ever used.
Respectfully,
OTTO L. HOFFMAN.

CHITTENANGO, N. Y., May 19, '90.
DR. B. J. KENDALL CO.,
Dear Sirs:—I have used several bottles of your Kendall's Spavin Cure with perfect success, on a valuable and blooded mare that was quite lame with a Bone Spavin. The mare is now entirely free from lameness and shows no bunch on the joint.
Respectfully, F. H. HUTCHINS.

KENDALL'S SPAVIN CURE.

MONROE, La., May 8, '90.
DR. B. J. KENDALL CO.,
Gents:—I think it my duty to render you my thanks for your far famed Kendall's Spavin Cure. I had a four year old filly which I prized very highly. She had a very severe swollen leg. I tried about eight different kinds of medicines which did no good. I purchased a bottle of your Kendall's Spavin Cure which cured her in four days.
I remain yours,
MARION DOWDEN.

Price $1 per bottle, or six bottles for $5. All druggists have it or can get it for you, or it will be sent to any address on receipt of price by the proprietors. DR. B. J. KENDALL CO.,

The greatest improvement in Corsets during the past twenty years is the use of Coraline in the place of horn or whalebone. It is used in all of Dr. Warner's Corsets and in no others.

The advantages of Coraline over horn or whalebone are that it does not become set like whalebone, and it is more flexible and more durable.

Dr. Warner's Coraline Corsets are made in twenty-four different styles, fitting every variety of figures—thin, medium, stout, long waists and short waists.

Local · Department.

—New Moon.

—Looks like rain.

—Picnics are plenty.

—Peaches are coming.

—Huckleberries are ripening.

—Some people remain patriotic a long time.

—Happy is the man who can excursionize.

—York celebrated Monday for the 4th of July.

—The coal dealer is now stocking up for the fall trade.

—A vegetable bonnet—one witha turn up on the side.

—New country potatoes are making their appearance.

—The new pump is here and will soon be ready for work.

—College days are over and the students are enjoying their vacation.

—The hum of the threshing machine will soon be heard throughout the land.

—Tuesday afternoon was a bad time for fishing, if you don't believe it ask Chas. Kurtz.

—The next big time will be the Firemen's convention in Lock Haven in Septenber.

—Business was considerably stagnated on Monday—the calm after the excitement incident to the fourth.

—Harvest time is now at hand and the farmers are at work in earnest cutting grain and making hay.

—Philipsburg firemen have already announced that they intend having a big time next Fourth of July.

—Are you going to the grand Army encampment in Williamsport this week? It will begin on the 11th, Saturday.

—Monday's Daily News was in great demand; the edition was exhausted in a few minutes, and a second lot had to be run.

—A number of Philipsburg firemen remained in Bellefonte until Monday evening returning to their homes on the 5.20 train.

—Fresh paint is being applied to the woodwork in the second and third stories of the building in which this paper is printed.

—The Bellefonte Republican is the only weekly paper in the county that is published every week during the year. Subscribers and advertisers should note this fact.

—The Beech Creek railroad is to be extended from its present terminus some fifty miles into Cambria county. Work on the same is to be commenced within the next two weeks.

—Treasurer J. J. Gramley is raising a new barn on his farm below Rebersburg to-day, and a couple two- horse loads of Bellefonters went down to help—eat the dinner and do the shouting.

—Credit to whom credit is due. Now that the big celebration is over tit is not fair to give the glory of its success to those who only appeared on that day while those who did the work go unrecognized.

—A very sudden death, though not unexpected, occurred at the residence of Mr. Jacob Thomas on Curtin street this morning. It was that of Mr. Thomas' large dog. Cause of death, old age and fat living.

—The public sale of lumber used for the fourth was held on Monday evening, carpenter Stover purchased the band stand for $4. 50 and L. A. Schaeffer purchased the arches for $3, making $7.50 for the whole.

—The Cornet Hook and Ladder company was the first company on the ground at Monday night's fire and the boys rendered valuable service in saving the adjoining buildings which were also thretaened with destruction.

—Now that there has been two fires the skeptical are firm in predicting a third one to occur soon. If there is anything in this belief our citizens should exercise great caution and care and the police keep open an over vigilant eye for the next few weeks, —A large number of buildings around town, and especially the Brockerhoff House, were badly streaked and spotted by the rain on the red, white and blue decorations put on for the Fourth. It is said the Brockerhoff will be repainted to cover up the stains.

—Chief of the fantastics, John Dunlap, says the reason they did not make a better showing on Saturday was because too many of his men were used for hitching posts in the back alleys and bungs in beer barrels, so that few of them were left to go into the parade.

—On Friday evening the Finance and Water committees of Bellefonte council will meet with the Chief Burgess and examine the water assessment for 1891, as made by the board of assessors, and if found all right an early day will be set for the holding of appeals.

COUNCIL PROCEEDINGS.

What the Borough Fathers Did on Monday Evening.

Council did not convene on Monday night until after 8 o'clock, although eight members were present at the regular hour, 7.30. The reason for the delay was the getting in shape and signing of a large number of bills, probably the largest number ever passed at one time.

Minutes of the previous meeting read and approved.

S. D. Ray, Esq., was present to urge upon council the necessity of setting an early day for the holding of water appeal.

Ed Blanchard, Jr., was present to ask the refunding of fine paid to the High Constable for the taking up of two cows and a calf.

Messrs. Kelley and Hoffman were present to make complaint about the condition of the gutters on Logan street.

Street committee reported improvements on streets; also that there was considerable complaint about the bad condition of boardwalks in various parts of town.

The Water committee reported the erection of the iron fence around the spring; also that the new pump has arrived and will be put on the foundation this week; also that the nusance complained about by Mr. Twitmire has been abated.

Fire and Police committee reported the employment of six special policemen on the 3d and 4th of July.

Market and Nuisance and Finance committees had no reports to make, except that there is a balance due the treasurer of $6,241.08. Market fees collected during the past three weeks were $10.25.

Council voted to draw an order in favor of Mrs. Eliza Curtin for $126 to be applied to the payment of taxes, and another order for $274 bearing interest from date and payable six months after drawn, the same to be applied as first payment on the lot of ground purchased by the council of Mrs. Curtin on Howard street.

Council instructed Mr. Longacre to investigate the complaint of Mr. Blanchard and to have all fines collected, save enough to cover expense incurred by High Constable, refunded.

The matter of the nuisance on Logan street was referred to the nuisance committee with power to act.

After the approving of bills the council adjourned.

The Ladies' Home Journal.

If it is true that "not one American in a hundred knows how to take a vacation" the July number of The Ladies' Home Journal has a distinct educational value, for it quite overflows with new and good counsel for summerings; besides the hints for "the Mother in the Country," to which many clever women have contributed, there are helpful words from Mrs, Margaret Bottome and Dr. Talmage; while in the bright page for "The Woman in the City" the lot of the stay-at-home is shown to be not so dreadful, after all. Other attractive features are Mrs. Henry Ward Beecher's "Birds in the Home; the sketch and portrait of Mrs. Joel Chandler Harris; A Bride in the Diamond Fields, by W. P. Pond, a bit of Switzerland, delicately pictured by Mary J. Holmes, and somevery excellent fiction, in which "Isabel's Father," by Belle C. Greene, is given a prominent place; "A soul from Pudge's Corners" by Jessie F. O'Donnell, and Mrs. Whitney's "A Golden Gossip" are continued stories of exceptional strength. One is concious of the July flooding the department pages and, in fact, the whole number; better summer reading would be hard to find. One Dollar a Year; Ten Cents a copy; issued by the Curtis Publishing Co., 433—435 Arch St., Philadelphia, Pa.

Base Ball.

On Friday the State College club came to Bellefonte to cross bats with the home team. Game was called about 2:30 p. m., with the college boys at the bat. In the first few innings the college boys scored 4 runs to Bellefonte's none and it began to look as if the college would beat, but it soon became evident that the battery for the home team had not yet got down to work. Eleven innings were played and at the end of the game the score stood 7 to 5 in favor of Bellefonte. Some good plays were made, and the game all through was an enjoyable one.

A Big Catch.

On Monday evening Chief Burgess W. F. Reeder went out to the dam to try his luck on the "speckled beauties." He caught one nice one and then he made another catch, but what a time he had of it. He hooked a trout, but it was a pitched battle as to which would win—the trout or Mr. Reeder. However, after snapping his rod in two and vainly striving to get away the trout finally gave in and Mr. Reeder pulled out a monster, fully fifteen inches long and would weigh about three pounds.

—The fourth of July celebration is now over and about every bill contracted is paid and there is left of the general fund about two hundred dollars to apply on payment of the new steamer. This, together with what the Logans made at their festival, over $200, will make the next payment on Bellefonte fire steamer. Surely the great celebration was a success in every way.

—What is wanted to improve a town is grit, push, snap, vim, energy, churches, academies, enterprise, harmony, cordiality, advertising, healthy location, talking about it, help to improve, patronize its merchants and mechanics, faith exhibited by good works, honest competition in business, help all spirited citizens, and be one of them yourself. Always cheer on the man who goes in for improvement.

BURGLARS AT WORK.

JOHN W. COOKE'S HOUSE ROBBED SUNDAY NIGHT.

On Sunday night, or rather this morning, robbers entered the residence of Mr. John W. Cooke, on Allegheny street, and managed to get away with a gold watch and chain, a silver watch and chain, a new coat and vest belonging to Will, and about ten dollars in money, in all valued at about $125. It was about half past two o'clock when Mr. Cooke was awakened by hearing a strange noise in the house. He got out of bed and opened his room door and was just in time to see a man run down stairs out at the door and disappear in the darkness.

The robber had taken a full suit of clothes with him. From Cooke's he went to the alley between Mr. Milliken's and Mr. Blanchard's and there he stopped to rifle the pockets after which he hung the trousers on the fence where they were discovered this morning.

While the man was in the alley he was discovered by John Blanchard who called to him to know what he was doing there at that time of night. The man made no reply when Blanchard told him to get out of that. An impudent reply was given when Blanchard dressed himself and came down town on the hunt of a policeman. He found Garis and took him out but by the time he got there the man was gone and no trace of him could be found. Neither Mr. Cooke nor John Blanchard would be able to recognize the individual again.

A Chicago Tragedy.

Chicago, July 6.—An unknown man was robbed and then deliberately murdered in Milton, near Chicago avenue, early this morning. At midnight Officers Reynolds and Reddy were patroling in that neighborhood, and noticed a group of men engaged in what they took to be a friendly scuffle. They paid no attention to the disturbance until a shot was fired, when they both ran to the scene. They found a man lying on the sidewalk with a bullet hole over the heart.

Reynolds remained by the dying man, while Reddy gave chase to the murderers. He fired four shots at them, but none of the bullets took effect, while they returned the fire each time. All but one escaped and he was locked up. He gave the name of Joseph Wright and asserted that he had no knowledge whatever of the affair. Edward McCabe, an ironworker, who was walking along Milton avenue during the chase, received a bullet wound in the back and is in a serious condition.

It is thought by the police that the unknown man was murdered by members of a well known gang of North Side toughs who were responsible, it is said, for the shooting of Lieutenant Barcal.

Jones—Young.

On Wednesday evening, July 1, there occurred quite a nice little wedding at the home of Mr. James Spotts, in Worth township, the contracting parties being Mr. Dorsey O. Jones, son of Mr. O. P. Jones, of Port Matilda, and Miss Susie Young, a niece of Mr. Aaron Williams, of Bellefonte. The ceremony occurred at 7 o'clock and was performed by the Rev. J. C. Young, of the M. E. church.

After the ceremony choice refreshments were served in the most elegant style. The happy couple took a short trip to Clearfield and other places. Among the guests present were Mr. and Mrs. Aaron Williams, of Bellefonte; A. S. Williams and wife, W. H. Williams, Dr. S. W. Harshberger and wife, Mr. E. P. Jones, father of the groom; Philip Spotts, Philip Young and Mrs. Margaret Woodring.

The groom is one of the most exemplary young men of that locality and is a blacksmith by trade. The bride is a charming young lady, well known in Bellefonte, as she resided with her uncle in this place for a number of years. Mr. and Mrs. Jones will take up their residence in Port Matilda.

The President's Fourth,

Cape May, July 5.—President Harrison and family passed a quiet Fourth at their cottage. Postmaster General Wanamaker was closeted with the President for a conple of hours yesterday afternoon. The courteous butler said they were talking of the high tide and the effects of last night's storm upon Cape May Point sand hills. Congressmon Bergen dropped in upon the President and said something about New Jersey politics, with remote allusions to a secon term. Mrs. Harrison and guests drove out yesterday afternoon on the new beach drive, which was lined with carriages and pedestrians. Every body stopped in front of the White House cottage and stared at the hammock idly swinging on the second story porch and admired the handsome new forty-four-starred flag which gracefully floated from the front of the house,

—A man may take a holiday, sleep all day Sunday, do no business on Monday, go visiting on Tuesday and then rest on Wednesday, but his note goes on all the same; it never even takes time to do anything but protest.

—Another terrible railroad accident occurred at Charleston, W. Va., on Saturday night by which sixteen were killed and about forty injured.

HORRIBLE ACCIDENT.

Ground to Death Under the Wheels of Western Express.

Huntingdon, Pa., July 5.—A most shocking fatality occurred on the Pennsylvania railroad a short distance east of Petersburg at an early hour this morning, the first intimation of which was derived in Altoona, when a station employe found evidence of a fatal accident at the pilot of the engine of western express on its arrival at that place. Word was dispatched to the several stations east, and it fell to lot of the Petersburg employes to make the horrible find. A short distance east of the station portions of a man's body were found scattered along the tracks. The trunk, to which the shreds of one leg still clung, was devoid of a head, and this was the largest part of the body found in the slightest degree intact. Going a little further, the searchers found other portions of the body and limbs horribly mutilated and the tracks crimson with blood. It was practically impossible to put the chopped-up remains in the slightest semblance of a human form, and they were accordingly placed in a small box and brought to the company's hospital here. From shreds of clothing aud other articles found with the body it was finally ascertained that the unfortunate who had met so shocking a death was Frank Gray, aged about 30 years, son of Charles Gray, of this place. Young Gray was formerly a brakeman on the middle division of the Pennsylvania railroad, and about five years ago met with an accident which resulted in the amputation of his left arm. He had since supported himself by doing such work as his condition would warrant.

What facts are at hand tend to show that Gray met his death while under the influence of liquor. About 10 o'clock last night near the Union depot in this place, while overcome with liquor, he had laid down or fallen down between the two main tracks and being discovered by a friend he was removed to a place of safety. He then boarded oyster express, which had stopped for out-of-town excursionists, and was ejected from the train at Petersburg, where he was seen sitting on the station steps at 2 o'clock this morning. It is believed he attempted to walk home on the railroad when he met his death.

He leaves a wife and three children, with whom he had not been living for some time. The interment took place this afternoon.

Milesburg Murmurings.

Niss Stella Stonerod, one of the bright and accomplished daughters of station agent, C. P. Stonerod, returned home from Lock Haven State Normal school today. Her host of friends are glad to see her, judging from the number of them who met her at the station.

Mifs Sallie Stonerod, of Pittsburg is stopping at the home of her uncle, C. P. Stonerod.

The Mountain City Band, of Renova, stopped for breakfast at the Central. After they finished breakfast they awakened the sleepy heads by two very choice selections.

The remains of Christ Peters, who was killed at Bellefonte Round House yesterday, were quietly laid to rest in the Old Cemetry at Milesburg. Another home made desolate through the carelessness of Rail Road men.

The Hipple Planing Mill.

The rebuilding of the Hipple planing mill was begun in earnest Monday, and a large force of stone masons and carpenters are at work preparing for the erection of the new building. The new structure, which will be erected on the site of the one burned, will be 50x100 feet, of frame, and two stories high. The latest improved machinery will be put in, and there will be more wood-working machines on the second floor than there were in the old building. Mr. Hipple states that about the same number of men will find employment in the new mill as were employed before the fire. The work of rebuilding will be pushed as rapidly as possible, and the new mill will be ready for operation in less than a month from this time.—Lock Haven Express.

—As announced in this paper a few days ago great effort is now being put forth to reorganize the Bellefonte band. Some of the best citizens of the town are interesting themselves in the movement and we trust before many days to give our readers some definite information on the subject. Prof. W. T. Meyer will have charge of the new organization, and this of itself, is sufficient guarantee to our citizens that the band will prove a success. It is desired to make it a full band of not less than twenty-five or thirty members.

ANOTHER FIRE.

Morris' Stable, With All the Contents Destroyed.

At 9.45 o'clock Monday night an alarm of fire was sounded and everybody rushed toward the northern part of the town, where a bright light easily showed the location of a fire. On reaching the spot it proved to be the large stable of Mr. A. G. Morris, located just in the rear of the lime kilns. By the time the fire companies arrived on the scene the building was one mass of flames, and it was impossible to do anything only save the adjoining buildings.

The stable, with all its contents, three horses, two mules, three ton of hay that had just put in on Mondoy, and some wagons and buggies, together with all other stuff usually kept in such a place, were burned entirely up. The loss will aggregate about fifteen hundred dollars, on which there was little, if any, insurance. The origin of the fire is a mystery, but it is believed to be the work of an incendiary.

Four Electrocuted.

Sing Sing, July 7.—The electrocution of the four murders, Jugiro, Smiler, Slocum and Wood, occurred at an early hour this morning and the four condemned men were killed.

Only one hour and a half elapsed from the time the first convict was placed in the fatal chair until the last one was dead.

The time of execution was: Slocum 4 minutes, 42½ seconds; Smiler 5½ minutes; Wood 6 minutes, 39 seconds; Jugiro 6 minutes, 6 seconds.

SATURDAY NIGHT'S BLAZE.

Ed Rowes' House on Curtin Street Entirely Destroyed.

About ten o'clock on Saturday night, just as the great celebration was drawing to a close, the cry of fire was heard and an alarm was sounded for the North Ward. Everybody ran toward Curtin street but as no light could be seen it was at first thought to be a false alarm but once up on Curtin the smoke and smell of fire proved conclusively that there was fire somewhere and finally it was located in the house occupied by Ed. C. Rowe. No fire could be seen anywhere but smoke was pouring from every crevice in the house.

As all the of the family was down town the house was locked up, but an entrance was finally effected into the basement. From the cellar the fire could be seen and appeared to be burning in every partition and between the centre chimneys. It was impossible, however, to reach it there and a front window and the door were broken open. By this time the entire interior of the house seemed to be a furnace of fire and already it was breaking out of the gables. Only a part of the parlor furniture could be saved and a picture of their little girl was also gotten out.

There was not water enough on Curtin street to use the hose and it was fully fifteen minutes before the steamer was ready for work and then it had been attached to a 3-inch main and the supply of water was very insufficient. By this time the house was all ablaze and all efforts to save it would prove futile, so that attention was given to preventing the spread of the flames and putting out the flames on the ruins. This was successfully accomplished by midnight. The loss all told would foot up five or six thousand dollars, Mr. A. S. Valentine, who owned the house had it insured for $1600 and Mr. Rowe had $2000 on his furniture, $500 in J. C. Weaver's agency and $1,500 in Mitchell Gardner's agency.

Blaine Much Improved.

Bar Harbor, Me., July 7.—Secretary Blaine has been riding twice to-day, and his outing covered considerable distance on the country roads. This morning he was riding about the streets of the village, often stopping and getting out of his carriage and entering shops. Emmons Blaine, who arrived Saturday, says his father has improved wonderfully since he saw him about ten days ago. It may be stated upon the best authority that Mr. Blaine has neither Bright's disease, diabetes nor any other kidney complaint.

No one who sees him daily riding about the village can fail to see a marked improvement in his condition. The family always live quietly while here, but no more so this year than usual. They receive the usual callers, and the secretary is often seen pacing or sitting upon his piazza by those passing. Mr. Blaine's physician, Dr. J. Madison Taylor, of Philadelphia, says that he found his patient better today than he has before seen him; that his improvement is as uniform and rapid as could be expected, and the condttions are favorable to his ultimate recovery.

He eats abundantly of everything and takes exercise in all kinds of weather.

Officers Installed.

On Saturday evening, July 4th, Port Matilda Castle, No. 219, Knights of the Golden Eagle, installed the following newly elected officers for the ensuing term of office:

P. C.—W. G. Morrison.
N. C.—G. J. Woodring.
V. C.—W. Wagner.
S. H.—Cromwell Jones.
K, of E.—S. U. Harshberger.
M. of R.—R. D. Ardrey.
Representative to Grand Castle—A. J. Johnson.

Port Matilda Castle has now a membership of seventy-three, all in good standing. They have their own hall and are out of debt, with a snug little sum in the treasury.

Fell Down Stairs and Broke His Neck.

Mr. Henry Schweitzer, of Johnstown, met with a violent death at his residence in this place on Monday evening. He had not been feeling well during the afternoon and at 5 o'clock he laid down on his bed in his sleeping chamber. At 8.30 o'clock his daughter-in-law in the kitchen was startled by hearing a heavy crash as of a body falling down stairs. On hastening to the stair door she found her father-in-law's body at the foot of the stairs. He had probably made a misstep in the darkness with the result as stated.

—Landlord Brandon informed the writer on Tuesday evening that the race track movement was not dead nor sleeping; and that in the near future it was just possible that the citizens of Bellefonte and Centre county would be surprised by seeing the thing materialize. This is certanly good news and we rejoice to give it.
